

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

WAS FATALLY INJURED

Woman Struck by Auto Driven by Lowell Man

Mrs. Ruth Kittredge, aged 74 years, a resident of Tewksbury, was struck and fatally injured by a big six-cylinder Premier touring car owned and operated by James H. Horsfall of this city about 8 o'clock Saturday night in Wilmington, not far from the Tewksbury line on the Woburn road.

Mrs. Kittredge was hurried to the home of Arthur C. Tingley in Tewksbury where she was attended by Dr. Dodge of Wilmington and Dr. H. M. Larrabee of Tewksbury. It was found the woman was suffering from broken ribs on both sides, a terrible wound in the head and other injuries about the body.

Despite the efforts of the doctors to save the woman's life she died about 1.30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Albert Zepp, a nephew of Mrs. Kittredge, states that after the machine struck the woman he shouted to the men in the car to come back and assist him in caring for his aunt, but they paid no attention to him and speeded on.

The matter was reported to the Lowell and Woburn police and with the Massachusetts register number "5018" to work on a careful search was made for Mr. Horsfall. State Inspector Silas Smith and Chief of Police Swain of Wilmington were in this city yesterday looking for the owner of the machine bearing the number 5018, but they failed to locate their man. Last evening Mr. Horsfall learned that he was wanted by the police and went to the local police station, where he gave himself up. He was placed under arrest and charged with manslaughter, being released on $2000 bail to appear in the police court in Woburn (this morning, Messrs. Owen Carney and Patrick Keyes furnished the bail and Rep. Edward Fisher was engaged as counsel.

Mrs. Kittredge was on her way to Montvale, Mass., to visit relatives when the accident occurred. She went by way of an automobile with her nephew, Albert Zepp. When on the Woburn road near the town of Wilmington something went wrong with the machine in which she was riding. Mr. Zepp got out of the car in order to assist in the cause of the trouble and in order to remove the cushion in one of the seats asked his aunt to step out of the car.

Suddenly the glare of four headlights in the distance warned Mr. Zepp that there was an automobile approaching rapidly, but feeling that there was plenty of room for the approaching machine to pass, and not thinking for a moment but that the driver of the other automobile could see the lights on his machine, he continued to look for the trouble.

Mrs. Kittredge was standing close to her nephew's machine and apparently paid no attention to the approaching machine, which struck her a terrific blow.

The other machine kept on going, but skidded off into a ditch some distance away after dragging Mrs. Kittredge several yards. Mr. Zepp rushed to the assistance of his aunt, after carrying her to the rear of his machine in order that she might not be struck by any other machine that might pass through the road, shouted for the occupants of the ditched car to assist him in caring for his aunt, but it is alleged that neither of the people who were in the machine volunteered assistance.

It is claimed that there were three men and two women in the machine which struck Mrs. Kittredge and that the two women made a hasty escape after the car was ditched, but after Mr. Horsfall was placed under arrest he said that the only other occupants of the car other than himself were two male friends of his.

Dr. Dodge of Wilmington was summoned and after making a hasty examination of the unconscious woman ordered her taken to the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. C. Tingley of Tewksbury, and Dr. Larrabee was summoned to assist Dr. Dodge. Medical treatment was in vain, however, as Mrs. Kittredge died about 1.30 o'clock Sunday morning. Her injuries were numerous, her ribs being crushed, one piercing the lung. There was also a terrible scalp wound and numerous bruises and cuts on the body.

Arthur G. Beharrell, manager of the city hall garage, received a telephone communication that there was an automobile ditched in Wilmington which was to be towed to this city. Mr. Beharrell and one of his mechanics went to the scene and after removing the machine from the ditch drove it to Lowell under its own power.

At the Police Station

Mr. Horsfall denied all knowledge of hitting the woman, and stated that he was on his way to Lowell with two other men. He said that he saw the machine on the road stalled, but thought he was giving it at least five or six feet leeway. A few rods farther on his own machine went into a ditch and he went to telephone to the city hall garage in Lowell to pull him out.

"According to the story told by Albert Zepp, nephew of Mrs. Kittredge, the accident occurred in Wilmington, not far from Tewksbury, on the Woburn road," said Dr. Larrabee in speaking of the accident. "Mr. Zepp was taking Mrs. Kittredge down to his home in or near Melrose, and about 7.30 o'clock, something went wrong in the mechanism just under the seat. Mr. Zepp asked Mrs. Kittredge to step out while he fixed the brake, and she was on the running board when a machine coming from the direction of Woburn towards Lowell, crashed into the running board, caught the woman and dragged her quite a distance. The machine then skidded, and ran off the road."

Horsfall Arraigned

Mr. Horsfall was arraigned in the police court in Woburn today on a complaint charging him with man-

FOUND NOT GUILTY

Lowell Man Was Accused of Murder

in Second Degree

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 12.—Arguments for both the state and the defense in the case of Michael Pachiorous, charged with second degree murder for causing the death of John Germanakos, had not been completed when a recess was taken today in the Middlesex county superior criminal court and it was expected that the case would be given to the jury this afternoon. Judge McLaughlin delivered his charge to the jury immediately after the noon recess. It is alleged that Pachiorous and a companion killed

Germanakos at Lowell last March. Pachiorous' companion escaped. Judge McLaughlin's charge to the jury was short and the case was given to the jury shortly after two o'clock this afternoon.

Pachiorous was found not guilty.

There was a gathering of a number of foreign residents of this city at the hall at 32 Middle street yesterday, the occasion being an election of some kind, but instead of holding the election a riot was started and the people in attendance enjoyed themselves by throwing chairs, books and other articles at each other. As a result, Hugo Kachadoorian, of 129 Charles street, sustained a scalp wound which necessitated the taking of six stitches at the Emergency hospital and Inspector Philip Dwyer of the liquor squad stopped a chair with his head, but fortunately his hat saved him from being hurt.

From what could be learned the delegates who met in the hall yesterday afternoon were divided as to which side could control the meeting and when one of the factions decided that they would run matters as they saw fit, the opposing party felt that might was right and then the mixup started.

Word was telephoned to the police station and Inspectors Dwyer and Grady and Court Officer Galloway were sent to the scene of battle. As Inspector Dwyer opened the door and entered the hall, one of the battlers who had a chair in his hand, brought it down with considerable force on "Phil's" derby, but the officer made a quick "duck" and succeeded in escaping the weight of the blow and in a minute or so Nishan Juknavoria was handcuffed and unable to wield any more chairs. Armenag Derderian was also arrested and charged with assault and battery on Hugo Kachadoorian.

Juknavoria and Derderian were arraigned in court this morning on complaints charging them with assault and battery but at the request of the government the cases were continued till Friday morning.

Shooting Craps

Joseph P. Campbell and four other boys, who are juveniles, were having a game of scraps in Centralville yesterday when Sgt. Maguire and Patrolman Conside descended on the quintet and placed them under arrest.

Drunk Offenders

Thomas F. Shea, charged with drunkenness, was sent to the Massachusetts reformatory. He appealed. William Gillis, who received a state farm sentence, also appealed.

William H. Higgin and Charles Rogers were each sentenced to four months in jail, the sentences were suspended and they were placed in the custody of the probation officer.

Edward Martel and Joseph Burke, Sunday drunks, were fined $5 each. Patrick Troy, Fred Nault, Benjamin P. O'Hara, Glenn Alatto and Harry F. Timmer, second offenders, were fined $5 each. There were five first offenders who were fined $2 each and 13 simple drunks were released.

SCHOONER LOST

Wife and Child of Captain Drowned

FISHERS ISLAND, N. Y., Nov. 13.—The schooner which sank in Plum Gut off Fort Terry last night was the Edith Dennis, Captain Cook, of Greenport, N. Y. The captain was saved, floating in the Fort Terry shore on a piece of wreckage, but his wife and child and two men who made up the crew were drowned. Captain Cook was taken to the hospital at the fort completely exhausted. He left this morning for Plum Island light in the hope of finding the bodies of his wife and child.

The schooner, so far as information is obtainable here, was bound from Greenport to a Connecticut sound port. She was driven before the gale and sprung aloft when close to the Long Island shore in the Plum Gut. The vessel's condition was seen at Fort Terry and the 60 inch searchlight was turned on to sweep the waters and five companies of coast artillerymen were used as watchers. All that could be seen of the vessel was her mast. Captain Cook put his wife and child into a boat with the mate but the boat overturned and all were lost.

Before proceeding with the next case Judge Morton heard Lawyers William D. Regan and A. S. Howard and assigned a date for hearing a demurrer in the case of J. S. Hastings vs. F. W. and S. J. Qua, an action of contract.

Suit for Wages

The case of Mrs. Zilpha Davis of Jamaica Plain, Boston, vs. Fred W. Kent, administrator of the estate of the late William Small of Boston and Gloucester for wages alleged to be owed the plaintiff as housekeeper at a farm owned by the defendant in Hallowell, N. H., near Portsmouth, amounting to $2295.

Mrs. Davis alleges that the deceased who was the proprietor of a hotel in Gloucester, Mass., engaged her to keep house at the farm for his young daughter who at the time was attending high school at Portsmouth, N. H. She attended these duties for several years, incidentally frequently taking care of the animals on the farm, horses and cows, in the absence of the hired man.

In all the time she was employed she testified she received but $250, about $60 of which she spent on the house. She placed a value of $5 per week on her services. She alleges that Mr. Small when asked why he did not pay her regular wages admitted owing her, but said that he intended to give her all in a lump sum so that she might save it. He was seized with a stroke of apoplexy and while ill repeated his intention of paying her, but a second stroke brought on his death unexpectedly and Mrs. Davis was never paid. The case took up the entire morning session.

After a conference today between Judge McLaughlin, Dist. Atty. Higgins and Sherman Whipple, counsel for Jackson Palmer, who claims that he was never indicted by the Middlesex county grand jury on a charge of perjury, arrangements were completed for Palmer to give his side of the case at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Higgins will present evidence later, in the list of candidates for alderman. It should have been in the school committee column.

Joseph P. Whitley wishes to announce that he has dropped out of the aldermanic contest. Mr. Whitley had taken out his nomination papers. "I wish to announce," he said, "that I am not a candidate for alderman and I wish to thank my friends who have been interested in my behalf."

NEW PUMPING STATION

PERSPECTIVE VIEW OF THE NEW PUMPING STATION ON THE BOULEVARD. From an Architect's Drawing.

Fine Building to be Built on the Boulevard

The new pumping station to be erected on the boulevard will be ornamental as well as useful and will be a great improvement over the old shack that is standing there today. The style of the new house will be very unique and it will be sufficiently large and commodious to provide for extra pumps and boilers.

The new house will cost about $22,000 and the contract has been awarded to Mr. Patrick O'Hearn. The contractor has a gang of men busy on the foundation. They started work there a week ago today and the contract calls for the completion of the building by March 1. The building will be 31 feet in height and, fronting on the boulevard, will add greatly to the appearance of the boulevard and surroundings. It will have a red tile roof and the walls will be of terra cotta block, 12 inches thick and plastered inside and out. The roof will be supported by steel trusses and the building will be as nearly fireproof as it is possible to make it.

There will be a large coal shed connected with the building and the coal will not be exposed to the weather as is the case at the present time. Provision will be made for traveling cranes for the moving of machinery. The plans call for lots of light and the house, as a whole, will be highly ornamental.

The engine room will be 64 feet long and about 54 feet deep. The boiler room will be about 36 by 42 and the coal shed 21 by 62.

AVIATOR RODGERS INJURED

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 12.—"I'll do it again as soon as the boys get the aeroplane fixed up," said Aviator Rodgers early today. Rodgers was rendered unconscious and badly bruised yesterday in his fall of 125 feet in a field of ploughed ground at Compton, half way between this city and Los Angeles, where he was to cross over the Pacific, but will be confined to bed not more than a week, his physicians say. His machine was brought here today and repaired.

MONUMENT UNVEILED

Memorial Dedicated to Bay State Soldiers and Sailors

PETERSBURG, Va., Nov. 13.—A notable Blue and Gray reunion culminated here today in the unveiling on the Crater battlefield of the handsome granite monument erected by the state of Massachusetts to its soldiers and sailors who fell there in the war between the states. Governor Eugene Foss of Massachusetts and Governor Mann of Virginia participated in the ceremonies. The unveiling was preceded by a parade through the city in which the F. I. Wilcox post, G. A. R., and L. A. Tittle crew, Sons of Veterans of Springfield, Mass., the Petersburg, Norfolk, and Richmond camps of Confederate veterans and sons of veterans, the Petersburg Grays, National guard, members of the state staffs of Governors Mann and Foss and the monument commission took part. The Stars and Stripes, Confederate flags and the Virginia state flag appeared in the procession. The streets were lined with the people whose cheers nearly drowned the rattling of the drum corps to which the old warriors stepped.

At the battlefield, Miss Otcha Mahone, granddaughter of General William Mahone, who led the charge on the Crater, drew aside the huge American flag placed over the monument Friday by Colonel James Anderson of Springfield, Mass. Governor Mann delivered an address of welcome, then, Colonel Anderson, chairman of the monument commission, transferred the shaft to Governor Foss, who in turn presented it to the people of Virginia through Governor Mann. A. S. Rose of Norfolk

Mass., delivered the oration. During the oration, the Massachusetts visitors have been here the ex-confederates have tried to entertain them as royally as the Virginians were entertained July 4, 1910, by the Grand Army men at Springfield. A banquet at Robert E. Lee school tonight will be the closing event of the visit.

CATHOLIC NEWS

Feast of Blessed Virgin Observed Yesterday

At St. Peter's church yesterday high mass was sung by Rev. John F. O'Brien and the sermon appropriate to the feast of the patroness of the Blessed Virgin was given by Rev. John F. Burns. At the conclusion of the sermon Rev. Dr. Keleher spoke briefly on the departure of Cardinal-Designate O'Connell for Rome on Saturday. He said that he was among the thousands who went to Boston to greet the new cardinal and the demonstration was a strikingly beautiful tribute of loyalty and love such as seldom is seen. Dr. Keleher said that he had a brief interview with Cardinal O'Connell and that the latter desired him to convey to the people of St. Peter's and the parish an assurance of his love and interest in them. "Dear old Lowell," said the cardinal with deep feeling, and he could say no more, for the magnitude of the reception given him was overwhelming. Dr. Keleher referred to the significance of the visit, which extended to the Kaiser, one of the world's greatest potentates, to a Cardinal O'Connell and predicted that he would become a prominent figure in the councils of the church and in conclusion asked the prayers of the congregation for the cardinal's intentions.

St. Peter's Holy Name society held a meeting at St. Paul's chapel last evening with a large attendance. Rev. John F. Burns, spiritual director, officiated, and there was singing by the Holy Name society choir under the direction of James O'Connell. The work of tearing down the old church building in Gorham street is progressing, the roof having been removed during the past week. While no official announcement has been made relative to the building of the new school, it is believed that the work will be begun in the spring.

Act That Impressed

F. R. GREENOUGH WAS INTERESTINGLY TOLD

When seen recently at his home, No. 10 Rundles place, city, Mr. F. R. Greenough spoke interestingly regarding his experience with the new tonic "Tona Vita," now being introduced in Lowell by specialists sent here for that purpose.

Mr. Greenough said: "I have been sick for over two years, after having had an operation. I have taken every kind of medicine that I thought would do me any good to gain back my strength, but with poor results. Neither the doctor's treatment nor the medicines that I took gave me any relief and I was beginning to give up hope. 'A short time ago,' continued Mr. Greenough, 'I read an ad. in the paper about 'Tona Vita.' I went to the drug store where this medicine was being introduced. I picked the way the specialists went about things. I heard one of them tell a woman that they did not think the medicine would benefit her troubles and therefore did not want her to buy it. This act impressed me so that I bought a bottle. After taking it several days I began to improve and I have continued getting better each day. I now sleep fine and what I eat I enjoy, because it agrees with me. I know of other people who are also taking this tonic and have been benefited with it. I know it is the best medicine I have ever tried."

"Mr. Greenough's trouble was pure and simple nervous debility, which is likely to be found existing in any Lowell family," said one of the specialists sent here to introduce "Tona Vita," this morning. "Half of the people of Lowell find life a burden and have little real happiness as a result of this modern plague. 'Such people,' he stated, 'and there are lots of them, have uncertain appetites, poor digestion, uneasy sleep, little ambition and they feel too tired for the simplest work most of the time. They suffer with limidity, have no initiative, are pale and haven't enough good, rich blood in their veins to make them capable of self-reliance. Their nerves are pitched to such an extent that they imagine themselves afflicted with various diseases at various times. The real trouble with them is debility, produced by the strain of modern life, they are forced to lead. There is little of this ailment among the people of the country, the freedom of which permits them to observe nature's limitations. 'Tona Vita' will positively remove this miserable condition. If it fails to prove satisfactory, it costs nothing, as the medicine must do the work, or we don't want money for it."

The specialists who are here introducing "Tona Vita" are giving demonstrations of what the preparation will do. All day long they met callers at the Hall & Lyon drug store, from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

chrysanthemums inscribed "Wife," from the bereaved husband; pillow inscribed "Mother," from her son Michael and family; standing cross of roses and carnations inscribed on base "At Rest," from the Duffy family; sheaf of wheat from Mr. R. A. Griffiths and a spray of pinks from the Marks family. The bearers were Messrs. Thomas Noonan, Bernard Noonan, Frank Beck and Felix English. The remains were placed aboard the 12.02 train and taken to Amesbury, Mass., for burial in St. Joseph's cemetery in charge of Funeral Director James W. McKenna.

DR. JOS. E. LAMOUREUX STORM WAS SEVERE

Selected as Candidate for Mayor Heavy Damage Caused in Boston and Vicinity Last Night at Meeting Held Yesterday

An enthusiastic meeting of local voters was held in C. M. A. C. hall yesterday afternoon to discuss the question of naming a candidate for the municipal government under the new charter. The hall was literally filled and besides the 600 people who were present, a number of others were turned away for lack of room. The meeting was opened at 2 o'clock by President Xavier Delisle of the C. M. A. C., who in appropriate terms turned the hall over to the assembly.

Messrs. L. P. Turcotte and Xavier Delisle were unanimously chosen president and secretary respectively of the meeting. The chairman in brief remarks explained the purpose of the gathering, saying that it was a meeting of American citizens, and that the

was received with cheers and applause and this was kept up until he reached the stage. Mr. Turcotte then explained to the object of the meeting and asked him if he would agree to the wish of the meeting and be a candidate for mayor. Dr. Lamoureux was inclined to refuse the nomination, saying that as a member of the former committee of 60, it involved a question of delicacy and honor, whether he be a candidate or not, and that furthermore, his business prevented him from answering immediately a question that meant so much, but he asked until Tuesday morning, at which time he will give a definite answer.

At this point Councilman Genest made a motion that if the doctor agrees to be candidate for mayor, he be the only man in line for office. The motion was carried. An executive committee to look after the work entailed in the support of a candidate was named as follows: Dr. Rodrigue Mignault, Thomas J. Goyette, Henri Achin, Jr., L. P. Turcotte and Arthur Genest. This group of men started in their work last night and will continue until after election day.

The meeting came to a close at 5:45 o'clock with a rising vote of thanks to the C. M. A. C. for the use of its hall.

CHARLES DICKENS

Was the Friend of the People

Mon. J. W. Fairbank of Boston lectured at the First Unitarian Congregational church Sunday night. His subject was "Why Charles Dickens Slept in Westminster Abbey." The lecturer first referred to the birth of Dickens in 1812, and to the hardships encountered by Dickens in boyhood, hardships which undoubtedly influenced the author and gave to his works an effectiveness that would otherwise have been impossible.

The speaker alluded to number of the Dickens characters, including "Little Nell," "Tiny Tim," "Scrooge" and "Pickwick," and said that if he had contributed no more to literature than "Little Nell," he would still be sure of a permanent name. The simplicity, and sincerity and the Christian-like traits of Dickens were commented upon, and their relation to the novelist's success emphasized.

"The death of Dickens in 1870," said Mr. Fairbank, "was the occasion for sorrow throughout the civilized world, and the tributes paid to the man from high and low, rich and poor, were proof of the affection of the people everywhere for him. That he should have a place in Westminster Abbey with other immortals is but proper."

FRIENDS OF RUEF

Seek to Have Him Released on Bail

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—The movement to get Abe Ruef out of San Quentin prison, where he is serving a fourteen year term for grafting in this city, has gained such force that it seems likely that he may go free. Franklin K. Lane, interstate commerce commissioner, and Brand Whitlock, mayor of Toledo, have signed the petition asking for the release of Ruef on parole. There is a general feeling that Ruef has been a scapegoat. He was convicted at a time when the conviction of any of the accused men would have been easy, but all the others charged with grafting escaped.

KILLED BY A FALL

Investigation Into Death of Lawrence Man

LAWRENCE, Nov. 13.—Daniel Murphy, aged 61, of 25 Florence street, died yesterday morning under circumstances that prompted an investigation by the authorities. As a result, it was the opinion of Medical Examiner Dow that death followed a probable conclusion of the brain, caused by a fall. Murphy was married.

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—A 40-mile gale of wind that wrecked stores and houses, felled gigantic trees and telegraph poles, caused chimney fires, blocked streets, crippled electric service, and caused thousands of dollars of damage in and about Boston and among the ships in the harbor, swept through Massachusetts from the Middle West yesterday afternoon and evening.

The wind storm, which was first in evidence during the early part of the afternoon, increased in velocity during the evening hours, until a rate of 40 miles an hour was registered. As the velocity decreased a terrific down-pour of rain and hail flooded the streets, causing a cessation of electric car service in some sections.

The down-pour had scarcely ceased when the temperature began a speedy descent, and with it came a snow storm. The mercury continued to drop throughout the evening.

Windows Demolished
For several hours Boston and its surrounding towns and cities were in the very apex of the storm. The damage done in this section was not confined to any one spot. Trees and poles were blown down in all the outlying districts and even in the crowded districts of the business sections of the city, heavy plate glass windows were demolished and hundreds of dollars worth of goods damaged. A flag pole was blown to the ground on Hanover street, severely injuring a pedestrian.

In the Dorchester district a large tree demolished by the wind was blown to the ground, carrying with it electric light and telephone wires and leaving that section of the city in darkness. Large branches of trees throughout the section were blown down and several wires broken.

At Hyde Park avenue, West Roxbury, a large billboard was blown down, and John Mulvey who was passing narrowly escaped injury by jumping hastily from its path. Crossed wires caused the extinguishing of lights in certain sections of that district.

The force of the gale caused two chimney fires in East Boston. Lights were extinguished and car service interfered with.

Several trees were felled in Chelsea. On Boylston street, Brookline, three telegraph poles were blown down, and lighting and telegraph service was interrupted for a time. In Cambridge a detail of police and firemen were dispatched to clear away wreckage of trees left by the storm. Lights were extinguished in the Cambridgeport, Harvard square and North Cambridge sections of the city. In fact a trail of destruction followed the gale in every locality.

Felled by Flapole
But one serious injury was reported in Boston, that of Gaetano Lanni of 215 Hanover street, who, while on his way home, was struck by a heavy flapole and its iron supports that was blown from the second story of a Hanover street building. He was knocked to the ground, and for a time he was thought to be dead. He was taken to the Relief hospital, where he received his wounds were dressed and he was taken to his home.

Thomas DeMasse of 8 Davis street, Malden, narrowly escaped electrocution last night when a horse driven by him stepped upon a live wire that had been blown to the ground. The horse died immediately, and although DeMasse felt the effects of the shock he man-

LOSS IS $7000

FARM BUILDINGS AT FARMINGTON, N. H., DESTROYED
FARMINGTON, N. H., Nov. 13.—The Willowdale Farm buildings, a mile out of this village on the Rochester road, were burned yesterday forenoon, with a loss of about $7000. Only the front part of the dwelling was saved. A large barn and outhouses were burned, together with farming tools and several tons of hay. The buildings were unoccupied, but were soon to be used.

The fire started in the barn and is thought to have been set by a tramp. The blaze was discovered by Engineer Webb of the train from Dover to Alton Bay, which arrived here about nine. He notified Station Agent C. F. Reed, who telephoned to the Village Fire department.

Owing to there being no steam up at the factories it was necessary to ring the alarm from the church bells, but this was not effective, as it was nearly church time. The firemen arrived in season to save a small part of the house.

Willowdale Farm was one of the finest country estates in this section. It was owned by T. F. Green, a local farmer, who says he is uncertain whether he will rebuild. There was no insurance on the barn, but on the house there was $1000 insurance.

DIED SUDDENLY

GIRL STRICKEN AFTER CHEERING FOOTBALL TEAM
CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 13.—Barbara Newbold, a senior in the Concord High school, is believed to have given her life as a result of the school celebration at the victory of the football team over Nashua High, Saturday afternoon. The students turned out in unusual numbers and Miss Newbold participated in the school song and chanted through the contest. Just as the game was about to end a celebration began which lasted for nearly two hours. The students paraded the streets, cheering and singing.

Miss Newbold was rather delicate, but of a very excitable nature, and she became much wrought up and fatigued by the excitement. This was noticed when she went to spend the night at the home of a girl friend at Wheelers Corner.

Early yesterday morning she was seized with hemorrhages of the lungs and died before her parents could reach her. There seems to be no doubt that the strain which the young girl placed upon her throat and lungs induced the hemorrhages, as she had never had them previously.

A shadow has been cast over the entire school as Miss Newbold was very popular among the students. She is the daughter of Ernest Newbold of 16 Church street, a well-known granite manufacturer.

PROF. ZUEBLIN

Spoke at Grace Church Last Night

HIS SUBJECT WAS "MAN AND WOMAN"
He Says Man Has Not Made Good—Politics is a Part of Life—Mr. Zueblin Says That in the Larger Life We Shall All be Politicians

Professor Charles Zueblin lectured at the Grace church last night. It was his second in the "Social Forum" series and the attendance was so large that extra seats had to be provided. Prof. Zueblin's subject was "Man and Woman." He said in part:

"We often hear objections made to many reforms, based upon the claim that in order to have them it will be necessary to change human nature. That ought to be a recommendation for many reforms. If there is anything that needs changing, or that has been changed in the history of the world, it is human nature. There was a time when our ancestors ate each other—and that was human nature. There was a time when they owned each other—and that was human nature. Still we have people who believe in killing each other—and they call that human nature. Human nature changes with every age, with every century, almost with every generation. Why not go on changing human nature? It is man's business, at this stage, to take care of evolution. You will find as you ride—to the shame of civilization—in the great trans-continental trains, the people are better looking than the people on the little side country roads, where they are bowed down by labor. They have advantages that make them at least look a little different. These forces are at work all the time, why don't we guide them—why sit down like puerile savages and let nature do what it will with us—even making us savages?"

"This dependence of woman, due very largely to her economic dependence, is primarily due to her being a mother, or a potential mother, and tied down at home. She was brought up to wait until her man found her, out of the universe. She has come to like this situation, where she is an object of attention; and man, whose vanity is flattered, of course likes it. Therefore, boys and girls are not allowed to grow up human beings, but men and women. The whole trend is in nature's work, but very largely man's unconscious design. Nature's method is to make the male attractive in various ways; man's way is to make the male attractive by his pocketbook, so he can provide these sources of woman's support for the women. It all goes to make up the dominant, even over woman's spiritual nature, and her motherhood; for women are compelled to marry for their support. Most of them marry for love, but so far as our economic system goes, that is of little account."

"So long as women are made dependent, we naturally get a distorted view of the nature of the sexes." "Nearly six millions of women are working in the industries of the United States—in this country where the men are so proud that the women are very queens, where they have made men all the dominating labor that you see in the fields of Germany, for instance, where they won't let their women go their fingers with the contamination of public life! But they can work in the grind of the factory. Why? Not because men have driven them, or even want them there; but they are driven out by inventions. Woman is told that she must stay at home and take care of the children. Well, even the children of the rich grow up some time, if they are not sent too young into the mills.

"These women in the industry, going to their daily work, jostle the men in the trains, and they do a man's work, frequently, in the factory and office; and many of them would think it unladylike to go to the polls. But it is madly to go all day long in the struggle with men for making money, and then at the evening vote, to take part in politics, then it is consistent to pass laws that will keep them out of industries and send them back home to wait until a man comes for them."

"One objection to women in political life—not to be dismissed with ease—is that they will be contaminated. One thoughtful man said to me tonight, that women would not like it. You cannot blame them. It must be uncomfortable for a gentleman to go to those same polls; and so many of them do not go. But is American public life permanently corrupt? Let the women show you how bad the polls are, and they won't be so bad, very long."

"One of the first things that they did in Seattle, when the women got the suffrage, was to recall a mayor who was the chief of vice. It was the women, with the mass of the people, who did that. Shortly after their mayor was elected, there was a recall movement against him, and our friends opposed said, 'See what comes of woman's domination!' But how hysterical they are! And the enemies of the referendum decided that measure. The fact was, that in the first place, the moment the women got the ballot in their hands they decided for virtue instead of vice in Seattle, and the people they got their man, or the people who were beaten tried to get up a recall, and they lost. When the people vote right both times, you have a pretty good credit mark for the newly enfranchised women and the men of good stock who voted right. "If your politics in Lowell is bad, it is because the people are bad. No recall is ever elected twice to office, by an honest constituency. If politics is crooked it is because business wants it crooked. Until we can understand that politics is a part of life, we will not understand woman suffrage at all. We will not even understand manhood suffrage."

"This man-made world would not be so bad a place, if the men had made good; but they haven't. Every one of us demands the political situation of our country, and denounces the incompetency of our municipal, state and national government; and then we say to the women you don't know so much about it as we do and if you come in you will be contaminated. I think that the women will make fools of themselves in politics. They will have so many precedents you cannot possibly blame them. Do you know that in Lynn they have elected a man that can't be found just because he was on a certain spot in the ticket? One of the great faults in our arguments on any subject is that we compare the thing that is at a disadvantage with the ideal thing that does not exist. When we argue on the question of woman suffrage you compare a narrow weak untutored woman with the perfect man that never existed. "It is said that women do not take advantage now of their opportunity to vote for school committees. Well, when men have decided whom to elect, the women have been asked to help elect them. I believe that women ought to prove their desire for the suffrage, by voting for school committees, but I do not think it ought to keep them from having the suffrage, because they do not. I do not believe that a school system can be properly conducted, without both men and women. By this cooperation, we are going to prove how absurd it is to assume that men are omniscient and women are incompetent. In the larger life we shall all be politicians, as we are all citizens; and we are going to realize that woman suffrage is only one of the steps in the passage from the police state to the welfare state."

COMMON SENSE IN MEDICINE

The Wealthy Can Afford Doctors and Nurses.

Many Good People "Cannot Afford to be Sick."

Proprietary Medicines Prove Efficient and Economical.

Wealthy families do not feel obliged to consider the matter of expense in case medical treatment is needed. They can afford to consult physicians, to get prescriptions and to have medicines specially put up for them. Most families, however, and they are the bone and sinew of the country, intelligent, prudent, economical men and women, have so little to go and come on that professional services are out of the question, except where they are absolutely necessary. These families, these millions of men and women of only ordinary means, regard it as "common sense in medicine" to avail themselves of the leading proprietary medicines, which are so remarkably effective and so easily obtainable.

The makers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are justified in saying that for all the diseases and ailments for which this great medicine is recommended, thousands of families have found it entirely satisfactory. It is unquestionably the leading proprietary medicine for impure blood, lack of strength, that tired feeling, loss of appetite, and for seborrheic troubles, such as rheumatism, eczema, or skin eruptions, catarrh, blood poisoning, bad sores, scrofula and other diseases.

It has effected more cures than any other medicine.

Harry D. Frink, Gloversville, N. Y., says: "I had a large bunch on my neck, which appeared to be scrofula. I have taken a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and the bunch has entirely disappeared."

Any preparation said to be "just as good" as Hood's Sarsaparilla is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit, insist on having Hood's and get it today in usual liquid form or tablets called Sarsatabs.

commissioner, and Brand Whitlock, mayor of Toledo, have signed the petition asking for the release of Ruef on parole. There is a general feeling that Ruef has been a scapegoat. He was convicted at a time when the conviction of any of the accused men would have been easy, but all the others charged with grafting escaped.

BODY FOUND IN WOODS SWEEPED BY TORNADO

Aged Nashua Woman Wandered Away From Her Home

Eight Persons Killed and Property Was Badly Damaged

NASHUA, Nov. 13.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Mrs. Belle Whittemore, an aged resident of Elm street, six weeks ago was solved yesterday morning by the finding of her body in the woods.

Fred Tessier and another young man were ranging the woods along the Dunstable road, two miles southwest of the city, when about 9:30 o'clock they discovered the body of a woman in a clump of trees half a mile back of the farm of Augustus Blain. The police were notified and Patrolman Charles Desmarais and Deputy Medical Referee Benjamin G. Moran went to the scene.

Dr. Moran authorized the removal of the body to an undertaker's, where it was identified by Rev. J. E. Cross, Mrs. Whittemore's pastor. The body was scantily clad, nearly all the garments having been taken off by the woman herself, it is believed, as the medical referee found no cause for suspicion of foul play. In the pockets of her gown, which lay nearby, were four apples.

The theory of the authorities is that Mrs. Whittemore became mentally deranged and wandered away into the woods and when she died and laid down she had the idea that she was going to bed.

The body was buried in Woodland cemetery yesterday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Cross officiating.

Mrs. Whittemore was 75 years old, the widow of Charles A. Whittemore, and had lived for many years in Nashua. She supported herself and was a member of the Disciples church.

She had no relatives in Nashua, but when she disappeared a reward was offered by her friends in and out of the church for any news concerning her. She had shown no signs of mental trouble previously.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Nov. 12.—Splintered timbers, broken furniture, crumpled rock and plaster, scattered farm produce and dead farm animals littered the ground in an area a quarter of a mile wide and 20 miles long indicate the tremendous force with which southern Wisconsin's worst tornado swept a path Saturday through Rock county. Eight persons were killed by it, and many more were injured, and damage was wrought to the extent of nearly a million dollars.

Of the injured, one, Albert Schmidt, 14 years old, living near Hanover, will die. His father and two sisters are dead. At least one more may die. The dead: Anton Schmidt, 55 years old, Hanover; Alice Schmidt, 18 years old, daughter of Anton Schmidt; Reggie Schmidt, 14 years old, sister of Alice Schmidt; Helen Austin, five years old, Milton; Mrs. John Crowder, Mrs. Elizabeth Proeder; Leo Lentz, 16 years old, Hanover; Amy Korbin, eight years old.

Wire service was demoralized Saturday night and it was not until yesterday that details of the catastrophe were obtained. A steady rain added to the confusion Saturday night and made identification of the dead difficult.

Nearly to Zero

Saturday night the thermometer dropped nearly to zero, and it was a fearful night for the stricken survivors, many being left without a roof to cover their heads.

The cyclone originated in the vicinity of Orfordville, 12 miles southwest of Janesville, travelled northeast several miles and then turned to the east.

The greatest damage was done near the point of origin and at Milton. The cyclone lasted only a few minutes. Although it occurred about the middle of the afternoon it was dark as night. The blinding downpour made the search for the dead and dying a terrible task.

Of the Schmidt family who lived three quarters of a mile east of Hanover, there is only one survivor. He is Albert Schmidt, the boy. Physicians say he cannot recover. Alice Schmidt and her younger sister were in the house. They were blown across the road, the house being demolished over their heads. Their necks were broken and their skulls fractured, and it required two men to pull their half-buried bodies from the ground.

FREAK DAY IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—One man prostrated by heat and another frozen to death within 19 hours, this is the impressive contrast provided by the most remarkable drop in temperature in the recorded history of the local weather station.

From 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when John Maloney, a freight handler, was prostrated by heat while working in a car at the foot of South Water street, to 9 o'clock yesterday morning, the mercury fell 61 degrees.

In an alleyway in the rear of his home at 3005 East 79th street, Henry Green was found frozen to death yesterday morning. It is believed an icy footing and the high wind toppled him over and injured him and that the cold quickly did the rest.

Men walked the streets Saturday without vests and with business coats thrown open. They wore the heaviest winter wrappings yesterday and still suffered. The fall in temperature was 74.3 to 13 degrees.

TWO DEAD IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The first blast of winter struck here yesterday, ushered in by a 58-mile-an-hour gale and a drop of 40 degrees in temperature. The storm's trail was marked by shattered plate glass windows, a stranded lake freighter and a demolished street car service. No fatalities occurred in the city but at Kennedy, Alfonso Dewey and his wife, an old couple, blinded by the storm, drove in front of an Erie passenger train and were killed.

About 12 o'clock the wind tore down the transmission cables of the Niagara Falls Power company. The lines on both sides of the river were prostrated, cutting off all source of power for street car service here.

Between 12:30 and 1 o'clock traffic was at a standstill. The tie-up occurred when travelling was difficult if not dangerous, and most of the passengers stuck to the shelter of the cars until traffic was resumed.

The 550-foot freighter J. Q. Riddle of Cleveland was torn from her moorings back of the breakwater and swept toward the beach at the foot of Michigan street. When the lines parted a watchman on board opened her water gates and she settled on sandy water, 150 feet from shore. Her position is not considered dangerous.

STORM KILLS TWO

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 12.—Two were killed and several seriously injured by a storm which struck Easton, Ill., Saturday night, tearing away telegraph and telephone wires and leaving the city isolated until last night.

The dead: Infant child of Mr. and Mrs. James Prater; body found 100 yards from the home, which was demolished.

Mrs. Allie Henninger, 75 years old, died of fright when her home collapsed.

The Prater home was the only one in the town proper which was much damaged. The baby was buried against a tree and killed. All the other members of the family were injured.

MR. M. J. SHARKEY

Hears of the Marriage of His Two Brothers

An Irish paper from Strokestown Co. Roscommon, Ireland, gives an account of the marriage on the same day of the two brothers of Mr. M. J. Sharkey, the well known insurance agent of this city. The brothers, John J. and Thomas J. are in business under the firm name of Sharkey Bros. The former was united in marriage to Miss Josephine O'Beirne and the latter to Miss Nora O'Connor. The account of the first marriage is as follows and the second was quite similar:

SHARKEY—O'BEIRNE

On October 10th at Pro-Cathedral, Marlborough street, with nuptial mass by the Rev. Timothy Sharkey, C. C. Boyle, (cousin of both bridegroom and bride), assisted by the Rev. B. Kelly, B. D. C. C. Strokestown, the Rev. P. J. Scott, C. C. Roscommon, and the Rev. M. J. O'Beirne, C. C. Summerhill, Co. Meath, (cousins of the bride) John J. (of Sharkey Bros.) Church street, Strokestown, second son of the late Thomas Sharkey, Drinane, to Josephine, third daughter of the late Patrick O'Beirne, of Carrow, Elphin.

DR. GUY HOLBROOK

Seized With Illness at His Office Today

Dr. Guy Holbrook, the well known physician, was seized with a severe attack of indigestion while at his office in Central street, this morning. He was removed to his home where he was attended by Dr. R. P. Bell. Until Dr. Bell's arrival it was thought he had been the victim of a shock but happily such was not the case and it is expected that he will be about again within a few days.

SURPRISE PARTY

A very agreeable surprise party was held at the home of Mrs. Ringwood Friday evening, when her daughter, Miss Anna, was surprised by a large number of friends who presented her a beautiful gold locket and chain.

The presentation speech was made by Master Arthur Broderick. Although Miss Ringwood was very much surprised, she responded fittingly.

A musical program was given during the evening by Miss Ringwood, Miss Hunter, Mary Conditine, Susan Carrig, and Master Paul Harris.

FOUR LIVES WERE LOST

When Schooner Witch Hazel Struck Rock at New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 13.—Four men lost their lives and two others reached shore with difficulty when the schooner Witch Hazel, heading her way up Long Island sound in the face of the heavy storm last night, struck hard on the west breakwater at the entrance to New Haven harbor and went down. Captain Britt of the schooner and three of his crew perished. The two members of the crew saved are Joseph Miller and Benjamin Miller of St. John, N. B. They are being cared for at the Seamen's Bethel in this city.

The Witch Hazel was laden with 375 tons of coal.

The Witch Hazel, which loaded at Port Reading, was towed through New York harbor and passed City Island with the wind blowing heavily. When in Long Island sound the southwest gale had lashed the sea into a mass of high waves. Captain Britt had to run before the wind and decided to try and make New Haven harbor for shelter. Just before dark the breakwater lights here were sighted. Two hours later the schooner brought up suddenly on southwest breakwater. Huge combes came aboard and in a minute Captain Britt and three others were washed overboard while two of the crew took to the rigging, being taken off several hours later.

The drowned: CAPTAIN BRITT, Calais, Me. ANDREW MILLER, steward, Jorgons Mines, N. S. OLE JOHNSON, mate, Norway. THOMAS MASTEN, seaman, St. John, N. B.

The men rescued also came from Jorgons Mines, N. S. They agreed today that the schooner struck so unexpectedly that there was little time to do anything but save themselves. They sprang for the rigging and as they clambered into it they saw the captain and the three others washed overboard. One of the men appeared for a moment on the breakwater and then disappeared. The fore and after deckhouse and jibboom were carried away. The Miller several hours later were taken off by the British schooner Gertrude, bound from Perth Amboy for St. John, N. B., which put in here.

The Witch Hazel lies in 18 feet of water and it is thought may be salvaged.

SAILS BLOWN AWAY

Schooner Was Caught in
Heavy Gale

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The cold wave that chased into the Atlantic some of the balmy Indian summer weather New York ever has enjoyed tightened its grip today and sent the mercury down to 24 degrees. This minimum recorded at eight o'clock this morning meant a fall of 44 degrees since one o'clock yesterday afternoon. The gale on which the frigid weather rode into town continued today at 38 miles an hour. Few small boats ventured on the sea outside the harbor. Reports of marine disasters are expected today. The steamer Vigilantia reported at quarantine this morning that on her way in she had passed the schooner Henry Withington with her sails blown away anchored about ten miles southeast by south of Scotland lightship.

The high winds have crippled wire service and the telegraph lines to the west are doing business under great difficulty.

SAILORS SCARCE

Hard to Get Crews for
Vessels

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 13.—A great scarcity of sailors almost unprecedented and which from a shipping standpoint is a serious situation now confronts the vessel owners and boarding masters of this port.

Much difficulty is found in getting a sufficient number of men together to make up crews for vessels ready for sea and some schooners have been held for days recently waiting for a crew. Shipping people are at a loss to account for this shortage of sailors. The pay has increased from $12 a month to $25 and cooks obtain even higher wages.

He first thanked Mayor Meehan for his message of appreciation to His Holiness, the pope. "Give my love," he said, "to all the people of Lowell, my native city, and thank them for the kindly interest that they have made manifest from time to time."

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1910 was

15,976

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 2, 1911. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

Cambridge and Chelsea had special reasons for rejecting the commission form of government. Chelsea had been governed by a board of control, and in Cambridge the charter question was decided solely on party lines. The democrats are in the ascendant and they refused to relinquish their hold. The city government of Cambridge does not call for radical measures.

If the German Chancellor had delivered his war-like speech in London instead of in Berlin, he could not have got a more prompt reply than given him by Premier Asquith. The British premier, too, drove back the sabre-rattling utterance of the German chancellor who was trying to make the best of the humiliating agreement which he was forced to make with France in the Moroccan affair.

Edward F. McSweeney of Boston in an address on the causes of tuberculosis says one of the most prolific is individual wrong-doing and greed—the greed that causes house owners and others to crowd the poor so that from unsanitary quarters and poor food the disease finds easy victims. This is true of other cities as well as Boston and perhaps of mill cities to a greater extent than most others.

THE GOVERNOR'S FUTURE

The great victory won by Governor Foss has already caused him to be mentioned in connection with the presidency. We do not want to lose him but if he attracts the presidential lightning nobody will say nay. Governor Woodrow Wilson, Clark and Harmon seem to have the democratic field to themselves as candidates for the presidency. There may be others when the time comes, but Governor Foss had better keep on and run for a third term next year, following the precedent of Governor Russell.

THE ANTI-PRESS PROPAGANDA

The propaganda whose special business it is to persuade the masses that the newspapers do not tell the truth on any question is one of the worst enemies of the plain people. From every street corner during a campaign you can hear men appeal to the people for sympathy and support on the ground that they are opposed by the press or that the press will not publish what they say. It is time something were done to put a stop to these itinerant shouters who assail public men in the vilest terms, and all this ostensibly to help some cause or the candidacy of some politician. Unless a newspaper deals out anarchy, profanity and libel it cannot report what these shouters have to say. Yet these men have a grievance against the press because they are not reported. The press is, therefore, "not reliable" and the people are asked to believe that it is also untruthful and on such authority. When the people learn to pay more attention to the advice of the press and less to that of the peripatetic orators they will find themselves more generally right than they have been in the past.

THE VOTER'S DUTY AND RESPONSIBILITY

The citizens of Lowell have before them the task of employing five men to conduct the business of the municipality under the new charter. The voter should now realize as never before the responsibility placed upon his shoulders in having a direct share in the selection of these men. Every citizen in this case should regard himself as an employer. He is a stockholder, so to speak, in the municipal corporation and should exercise as good judgment in selecting the men to serve the city as if he were employing them to take charge of business for himself. That is the rule that should guide every voter at the polls in the primary as well as in the final elections.

The old custom of voting for any nincompoop who buttonholes you on the street should be dropped. It has done more to ruin the city than any other mistake made by the voters. But for that custom we might have overcome the defects in the old charter but as soon as the voters began to support only the candidates who made a business of politics and who spent months visiting the voters at their homes, then good government became impossible.

Some voters will say that the new charter was put through by a clique as a means of capturing the offices. It was put through because under the old charter the voters elected to the city council some men who were a disgrace to themselves, to the city and especially to the men who elected them. There is no need to mention names but voters in their sober senses made a farce of our city government by sending men to the city council whom they would not entrust with a peanut stand if the business were their own.

Is there a sane man in Lowell who can deny this statement? There is where the movement for a new charter originated—in the utter disregard of common decency and practical results shown by the citizens in some of the wards in selecting men for the city council.

Let us hope that the voters who have been guilty of this political malfeasance will see their duty clear in the present case and do their part with one end in view and that the choice of the very best men possible for every office to be filled under the new charter.

Let no voter throw away his vote upon a weak or worthless candidate. If any joke candidate gets fifty or a hundred votes, the fact will be clear that just so many men vested with the franchise and given a heavy responsibility under the new charter have thrown it all to the winds and voted for a man whose election would be anything but a joke.

Talk about malfeasance in office. What can be expected if the voters deliberately commit the same crime against the city by supporting unfit men, joke candidates or men whose only claim to support is that they have asked for votes while the other fellow who has a business to attend to did not get around to solicit their votes.

If you are under an obligation to pay a certain sum of money for value received, do you think you would be justified in handing it over to a loafer who comes to your door asking for relief? Be just before you are generous. Give your vote to the man who from experience, honesty and ability deserves it, rather than to the unfit man who comes to solicit your support. By so doing you will discharge your duty to the city, not otherwise.

SEEN AND HEARD

Both Fred Shireman, chief clerk and "Jud" Carter, night clerk, at a Louisville hotel, are becoming bald-headed, and both have until recently been quite proud of the fact.

According to a friend, it took a colored bellboy at the hotel to take the carpet out of them a few days ago. A traveling man, who had been stopping at the hotel for some time, pulled up at the desk the other day.

He gazed at both over the rim of his gold spectacles for a minute. "Gracious goodness," he said, "you fellows will soon be coming your hair with a towel. What's the trouble?"

"Exclusive brain work," said Shireman. "Isn't that right, Carter?"

"Correct," corroborated Carter. "Only thinking men become bald-headed." Then he winked and winked at a negro bellhop. "Fact, isn't it, Sam?" he said.

The negro boy grinned. "Well, now boss," he said, "I don't know for sooth 'bout dat. My ole dad he always say dat an empty bahn don't need no covah."

LOVE

What is it? This golden sunbeam
That shineth so bright and glad,
And the faces from which it has faded,
Looketh so dread and sad.
And those who are plain and haggard
By sorrow and strife and pain,
Need but this ray of beauty
To make them fair again.

What is it? This heaven-sent blessing,
This inward light from above,
This Eden of rest and beauty,
Whose portals we call love.

What is it? This priceless jewel,
That never was bought for gold;
And only reverently given,
Silently, soul to soul.
That poets have tried to sing of,
But their words could not reach its depth,
And only played on the heart-strings,
With their music's fleeting breath.

What is it? This light whose meaning
Only the soul may know;
That bringeth wings to the weary,
And the blessing of joy or woe.

Constant employment and entertainment are essential to the child's well-being. These can be made both entertaining and informing. It is perfectly natural that a normal child should be doing something all the time; and in this way he can be taught that

"Never a minute shall you despise,
Use it in some sane way;
Doing your best, through each hour
That flies,
Gives life a noble day."

The more the parent makes himself the companion of the child the better his opportunity for inculcating in him the principles he should adhere to through life. This should be done through love—with "reproof on the lips but a smile in the eye."

We often hear the expression, "A home where love is." There is no real home where love is not. It was such a home that Byron had in mind when he wrote:

"Tis sweet to hear the watchdog's
Honest bark
Bay deep-mouthed welcome as we Draw near home;
Tis sweet to know there is an eye will Mark
Our coming, and look brighter when We come."

We do not feel that we can accurately state the fact too strongly that it is through the influence of the home and the precept and example of parents that good citizenship comes. And thus it is seen that the home is the bulwark of the nation.

A professor in the University of Chicago told his pupils that he should consider them educated in the best sense of the word when they could say yes to every one of the questions that he should put to them. Here are the questions:

Has education given you sympathy with all good causes and made you espouse them?

Have you learned how to make friends and keep them? Do you know what it is to be a friend to yourself?

Can you look an honest man or a pure woman in the eye? Do you see anything to love in a little child? Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?

Can you be high-minded and happy in the meaner duties of life? Do you think washing dishes and hoeing corn, just as compatible with high thinking as piano-playing or golf?

Are you good for anything to yourself? Can you be happy alone? Can you look out on the world and see anything except dollars and cents?

Can you look into a mud puddle by the wayside and see a clear sky? Can you see anything in the puddle but mud? Can you look into the sky at night and see beyond the stars? Can your soul claim relationship with the Creator?—Kansas City Star.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A writer in The Tablet says: It was my privilege to spend three days among Monte Cassino's communities, and the charm of those three days will never fade from memory. Up there above the clouds one is aloof indeed from the workaday world, aloof from all its pettiness, yet surrounded with its nobler toil, and with its history epitomized around one. The monastery looks down upon the Campagna Felice and its back is to the mountains. From the balcony of the guest chambers your gaze stoops dizzily down to the sea-like plain. Over against you are snowy ranges and clear cut peaks at whose bases rocky defiles show the way to Naples and sometimes give blue glimpses of the Gulf of Gaeta. The winding poplar planted Rapido brings life to the teeming plain, and across the gradually focused stretches of that wide campagna goes the white ribbon of the Appian Way.

The present church was built as late as 1727, and Luca Giordano's frescoes tell the story of the saint's miracles, while other pictures commemorate some of the hardest trials through which his followers passed. One of these depicts the eruption of a band of fierce barbarians, a wave of the tides of destruction with which the Goths deluged Italy. The miscreants have penetrated to the high altar, where the aged abbot is celebrating mass. One of them has seized the chalice in his left hand and with uplifted sword is in the act of striking him dead, as thinking only of saving the sacred host the old man stoops to recover it from the steps of the altar. There is a whimsical touch in one of Giordano's frescoes above the doorway, one with a particular appeal to animal lovers. The scene is in the interior of a church, with a group of ecclesiastics and nobles on either side of the chancel. A miraculous apparition is seen but which has not yet dawned on the crowd. Only a little spaniel, his instinct causing him to "tumble to it" at once, is looking upward with an expression that promises a bark of rapturous excitement.

There is a noble court leading to the main entrance of the church, and with statues of Saint Benedict and his sister, Saint Scholastica. From the loggia is obtained a magnificent view of plains and mountains, and, as the eye travels down the slope of the hill on which the monastery is built it marks how, wherever there is a foothold and sufficient shelter from the wind, cultivation, as if for very life, is in progress. I went for a ramble with some of the brethren down a bit of the hillside and up again to a spur upon which in ancient days there stood a temple to Venus and which it is intended shall one day be crowned with a chapel to Our Lady.

Thomas Hardy, who has made such a generous distribution of his manuscripts, once remarked: "When I am dead the only one of my novels that will be read is 'Jude the Obscure.' But it is safe to assume that posterity will not be so limited in its appreciation of the great novelist. For its rural comedy alone the Hardy series will take its place among the classics. In this connection a friend once asked him how he managed to portray the English country girl so faithfully. 'You might almost be a country girl yourself,' said the inquirer. 'When I was a young man,' Mr. Hardy replied, 'I used to write love letters for the village girls to the soldier sweethearts in India. That naturally gave me a good insight into their nature and characteristics.'

The site of Mr. Hardy's home at Dorchester, built from his own designs, was secured to him by the generosity of the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales. Mr. Hardy's request, cropping up, his Royal Highness said, "We must do all we can to encourage British authors. The land has numerous historic associations and many Roman relics from time to time have been unearthed in or near the pretty garden."

Thackeray's playful habit of wrapping rhyme up in prose is happily illustrated in the letter below, which was written to his friend Holo:

"Did I ever write and comply with your desire to have a page of auto-graph? You're welcome to it. Tell your friend the lady I have no pleasure higher than in writing pretty poetry and striking of the lyre in compliment to a gentleman whom benevolence did inspire to send me partridges and pheasants killed with shot or wire (but whatever the way of Appropos of the revival of "What Every Woman Knows," Mr. Barrie, in one of his few expansive moments, told Mr. Frohman that many of the sayings and doings of the heroine, Maggie Wylie, were directly inspired by his own mother. Thus when Maggie objects to her brother sitting in the best chair (which she covers up carefully before retiring), Barrie was thinking of his mother's saying, "I wouldn't sit in the blue chair, James." Maggie produces her knitting on all occasions, just as her prototype "had her stockings altered on the wires for old moments."

The most notable instance of a novel dealing with a country which the author had never seen, was Short-horn's "John Inglesant." The second volume of that remarkable romance deals in the most detailed way with Italian manners and Italian scenery. Many of the descriptions—that of Umbria at night, for instance, and the scene in the pavilion in the forest—are charged with the very atmosphere of Italy, and Florence during the plague lives horribly before our eyes. Yet Joseph Henry Short-horn had never been in Italy. Enthusiasm and the genius for assimilation evolved it all in a quiet house at Edgborough.

Maurice Maeterlinck began his literary career with three apparent failures. His first literary endeavor was to found a review, La Fletade, which soon ceased to appear. His second was the publication of a volume of poems, "Serres chaudes," which fell stillborn from the press. Then came his play, "La Princesse Maleine." It was printed by hand—the author's own hands in fact—and the edition consisted of exactly twenty-five copies, which were given away. For a year it attracted no attention.

Then, however, one of the twenty-five copies fell into the hands of M. Octave Mirbeau. He wrote a resounding article about it in the Figaro and the author, like Byron, woke up and found himself famous.

THROUGH THE MILL

BOOK WRITTEN BY MILL WORKER OF NEW BEDFORD

"Through the Mill," an autobiography of the first twenty years of the life of Mr. Al Priddy, is an interesting account of his eight years of work in the cotton mills of New Bedford. Compressed into a few lines the trend of the narrative follows:

Owing to the drinking habits of his father, parents Al Priddy was forced to begin work in a mill when eleven years old. Compelled to become a plodding millworker at a time when he should have been a romping schoolboy, the lad's education was curtailed, his body's natural growth was stunted and even his moral principles were assailed. Under these handicaps, the boy, longing for an education, attempted to study at night, but because of his enfeebled health, these attempts were practically fruitless.

To the debasing effort of strong drink on the characters of parents Mr. Priddy principally attributes the resultant evil of child labor. He pleads to parents to manufacturers and to lawmakers in behalf of these children; so many of whose lives have, through this evil of child labor, been blighted. They are the unprotected victims of social injustice.

While the book is one written with a purpose, yet, by reason of its life-like characters and its vivid portrayal of the mill worker's day-by-day life, together with its easy and entertaining style, the volume will be interesting to all who like to enter into the joys and sorrows of the plain people.

Altogether, "Through the Mill" impressed the reader again with the adage that "Truth is stranger than fiction."

afternoon with a large attendance. President William Ballinger was in the chair. Secretary Arthur Miller read his annual report showing the club to be in a sound financial condition.

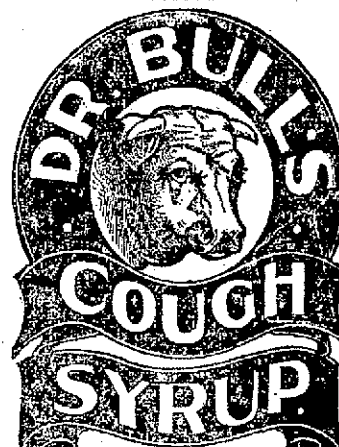

A slight change was made in the constitution and bylaws, by which the fiscal year will begin on January 1st and end December 31st of every year, instead of as at present, without, however, changing the time to elect a captain and team committee. These will be elected at a special meeting to be held in March, just before the playing season opens.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, William Ballinger, (re-elected); vice president, Walter Metcalf; secretary, Frank Hollsworth; treasurer, Fred Ballinger; executive committee, James McManey, J. Barber, J. Cookson, F. Hainsworth, G. Robbins and J. Whitworth.

An interesting discussion of the future of cricket in this country and the sentiment favored of branching out into other lines of sport and becoming a general athletic club with football and basketball among the features took place.

After the meeting a chicken pie supper was enjoyed and it was served by the wives of several of the members. A short entertainment followed in which the following took part: Mrs. Herbert Hadley, Miss Lottie Vinal and John Tabrah, the duties of accompanist being shared by Herbert Watrous and Alan Firth of Lowell Representative Edward Fisher was also present and interested his audience with the relating of many reminiscences. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour and the strains of the Vesper orchestra, brought a pleasant afternoon and evening to a close.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

So great has been the demand for tickets for the engagement here at the Opera House on Tuesday, Nov. 14, of Maude Adams in Rosamund, the poetic drama "Chanticleer" that the management has decided to accept mail order for this engagement commencing today. Orders must be accompanied by remittance and will be filled in the order received and will be delivered Nov. 27th. The box office sale will open Nov. 28th.

"THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER"

"The Chocolate Soldier," which will make a bid for favor in this city at the Opera House on Thursday, Nov. 16th, cannot be compared to other musical productions, because its individuality sets it far apart and above the musical atrocities with which theatregoers have in the past been treated. Its story, drawn from Shaw's "Arms and the Man," is in itself a classic of charming, wholesome and penetrating comedy. The vivid and merry exploits of "The Chocolate Soldier" among the susceptible women of Bulgaria and the peacocks of the Bulgarian army, the way in which he ridicules their vanities and puts to shame their follies, form a libretto that will exhilarate tired minds and cure the most confirmed hypochondriac.

But the supreme strength of the opera lies in the music of Oscar Straus, which illumines and interprets every phase of the story and leaves its audience dizzy with astonishment at the versatility and the beauty of its melodies. With admirable skill Straus has caught the undercurrent of ridicule that flows through every scene even the most serious, and embodied it in telling and unforgettable musical phrase. Moreover, the music and the story are wedded to each other; each lyric rises out of the situation to which it belongs, and the songs are not introduced wholly foreign to the plot, but as indispensable portions of the story as the dialogue itself.

GERTRUDE RENNYSOON

Since Gertrude Rennysoon sang in the High street church in Lowell she has become not only one of America's best known singers but also one of the greatest Wagnerian singers of the world. The distinction to be invited to sing at Bayreuth, the Temple of Wagner's Opera, falls only to the few select ones and it is especially rare that the honor is conferred to anyone who is not German. Nordica had this honor conferred upon her when she was in the zenith of her career and Gertrude Rennysoon was the first American to sing the part of Elsa in Lohengrin since Nordica. This was in 1905 and the wonderful success this American artist had on that occasion is not German. HATHAWAY THEATRE

"A Knight for a Night," and uproariously funny comedy by Henry Rousseau, author of "Naughty Rebecca" and even funnier than the latter, will be this week's attraction at the Hathaway theatre and the Donald Meek stock company will be welcomed back into comedy again. The play centres around a hamlet actor manager, one Julius Cassius Bragg, who presents a Roman tragedy written by a college professor in the latter's home town. A parrot which the actor-manager has borrowed to give realism to a forest scene makes a funny break during one of the intensely dramatic situations in the tragedy and puts the show out of commission and with it the actor-manager. Donald Meek will play the part of the Thespian and may be depended upon to make good the part. A special feature of this play will be the musical numbers contributed by Mr. Walsh and Miss Lillian Spinner of the company. Mr. Walsh is well known as a singer, having first appeared in public as such in this, his home city, and afterward appearing with great success in musical comedy. Miss Spinner is a talented musician and will accompany Mr. Walsh on the piano, the musical numbers being incidental to the play. Special scenery and settings have been prepared for "A Knight for a Night," and an elaborate production is assured. Today is chocolate matinee day and each lady holding a paid reserved seat for the afternoon performance will receive a box of chocolates. Seats for any of this week's performances may be ordered in advance by telephone. "A Knight for a Night," includes the entire company.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

Have you noted the extraordinary bill offered at Keith's new theatre, this week, the largest and strongest vaudeville bill ever offered in Lowell. Heretofore the program has included seven vaudeville acts in addition to the pictures but beginning this week the bill will include an extra act making eight in all.

This week's bill is headed by one of the most captivating musical acts to be found on the stage. The Five Musical Nosses, direct from Europe will appear in a reproduction of the scenes of Old Saville, that ancient centre of company of almost human figures, notably the harp. This is no ordinary variety musical act but a real feast of music on instruments seldom heard and played by a quintet of artists. Les Nonfonds, the comedy bar artists will do a hair-raising act on the double bars including their original "Loop the Loop" feature. Al and Hattie Barlow will be seen and heard in a delightful pianolog. The Beldon-Chapelle company comes direct from the Bronx in a funny farce entitled, "Oh Doctor." Arthur Whitelaw, the Irish-American, pulls off a funny monolog. McCormick and Wallace from far-off Australia have the greatest ventriloquist act in vaudeville which includes a company of almost human figures, while Lewis and Doby will reel off some new parodies of their own concoction. Then there is Bert Melrose, the funniest of clowns, whose Melrose falls from the tipping tables are the envy of all acrobats and break-neck performers. Don't miss this great bill and order your seats in advance by telephone 28 if you desire.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

A stronger list of attractions has not been seen at the Merrimack Square Theatre in months than the one scheduled for this week. Heading the list is John J. Quigley, the original newsboy actor, who will be heard in some of his old time Irish song successes as well as several of his latest offerings. His program includes "The Blind Boy," "When Sweet Marie Was Sweet Sixteen," Raymond Moore's favorite song, and Paul Dresser's latest composition, "Would You Be a Child Again." Mr. Quigley is well and favorably known here, having appeared in this city on many former occasions. He is still in good voice and his endeavors to please will no doubt be met with the same enthusiasm which stamped his former appearances here. He will appear daily at 3.45, 7.30 and 9.15 o'clock. Mr. Quigley made his biggest hit when associated with "Sunshine of Paradise Alley" company.

Another good offering is Nebraska Bill & Co. in a wild west entertainment that is said to be unequalled on the stage today. It includes a rare exhibition of cowboy stunts that is sure to hit the popular fancy of all.

Our Stock Company will present Al E. Watt's great one-act play "By the Midnight Train," which has won such distinction all over the big circuits where it has been given. The piece is said to be cleverly put together and as interpreted by such clever people should certainly please.

Reed's Acrobatic Bull Terriers, the only act of its kind in the world, will be an added attraction. These animals are well trained and they give a most amusing entertainment. The Weston Sisters are good entertainers and the photo-plays for the first three days will include "Auld Lang Syne," one of the latest and best motion pictures manufactured. During the last three days of the week Pathé's weekly review of world-wide events will be shown. Four views, which change daily, and which are provided exclusively in Lowell to the Merrimack Square Theatre management by the American Press association, is a new feature that adds to the attractiveness of the program. On Friday night the Merrimack Square Theatre Concert orchestra will feature selections from the opera "Norma."

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

This is "Children's Week" at the Academy of Music. The little ponies and educated dogs will surely be a treat for the youngsters, while Bessie the mule will keep the horse in roars of laughter. The Troubadour Four with their character songs and funny witticisms will serve to amuse all ages and William Dick, the singing musician, cannot fail to please. A Rogers teapoon will be presented to every lady purchasing a ten cent ticket for Monday matinee. Amateurs will appear on Wednesday.

PRES. WM. H. TAFT

Has Considerable Work Ahead of Him

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—With the return to Washington of President Taft yesterday morning the White House shutters have been taken down,

Are We Making, Madam, a Million-Dollar Mistake?

When we select our wheat—

When we wash, brush and scour it—

When we pass it through 20 grindings—

When we sift it 10 times through silk.

No doubt this is adding a million dollars per year to the necessary cost of our milling.

Is it our mistake?

Or is it your mistake when you fail to get it—when you fail to specify Gold Medal Flour?

Think what this means:

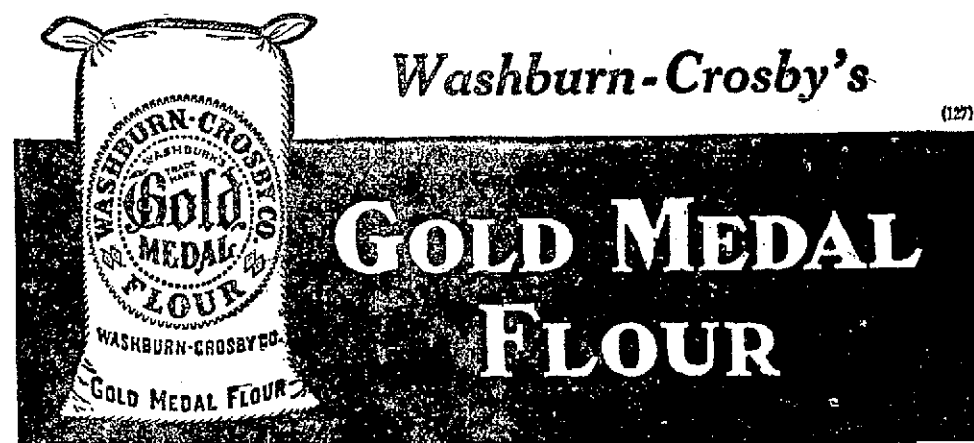

Gold Medal Flour now far outsells any other flour that's milled.

It feeds 24,000,000 folks daily.

Just because housewives—millions of them—have found that Gold Medal excels all other flours.

THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY

The official ink bottles have been refilled, new pens have been laid on the official desk and a stack of clean white paper laid ready for the official hand.

The president will have use for the official ink, the official pens and the official paper. He has much work ahead of him. Three weeks and two days from now congress will again be in session and will be ready to receive the president's message.

That message is still in futurity. Mr. Taft may have thought a great deal about it while he was traveling the country, but he has not committed his thoughts to paper. Stenographers will be kept busy from now on.

Mr. Taft came into Washington with the milkman. At a quarter to 7 in a dull, dreary November morning the president's special arrived at the Union station and at that early hour the president was up and ready to leave his car. A White House automobile was waiting for him, and with one of the railway officials and the secret service men to welcome him the president walked down the platform accompanied by Secretary Hilges and Maj. Bull, and was quickly whisked away to the White House.

The president looks extremely well and betrays not the slightest indication of the tremendous strain to which he has been subjected by continuous travel for the last two months. Most men at the end of a 15,000 mile journey would have been reluctant to get up at daylight on a cold and rainy November morning. Not so the president. He wanted no extra sleep and apparently was quite prepared to start off on another cross continent jaunt and find a good deal of fun in it. The president expected to meet Mrs.

Taft and his daughter at the White House, but they had not arrived from Hot Springs, and, after a short interval he fell into the regular routine of the White House. He had breakfast alone, and after breakfast he went over a big pile of newspapers, which kept him busy until it was time to go to church. After church he went back to the White House for luncheon, and in the afternoon he saw some members of the cabinet and went for a walk.

The first meeting of the cabinet since the summer will be held on Tuesday, when all the members are expected to be present. Wednesday the president will go to Virginia to dedicate a monument. While he will make occasional trips from the city, he will remain pretty constantly in Washington until the end of the session of congress.

BOXING GOSSIP

Great interest is being taken about town in the coming bout between Johnnie Gallant and Young Jasper, here the Lowell Social and Athletic club next Friday evening. The pair put up one of the best bouts ever seen here at their last meeting in Mathew hall and have not met each other since. Both are clever boxers and as quick as lightning. There is great rivalry between the pair as neither has ever shown a decided advantage over the other.

The boxing fans won't be happy until they see Jimmie Moriarty matched against one of the top-notch welterweights as they firmly believe that he is a candidate for the championship. Jimmie has improved wonderfully in his boxing and still retains the wallop.

Arrangements are being made for a the reason that he is a quick thinker, a sly, light footed mover and a puncher who seldom misses the intended mark.

Loughrey while receiving credit for remarkable gameness, was guilty of several violations of the rules. He hung on in clinches, holding and hitting, and at the same time lowering his head so that he might rough Coffey on the ropes. Evidently puzzled by these unfair tactics, Coffey in self-defense did some holding, too, the kind that Jack Johnson does when he pits the other fellow by grabbing the biceps. Whenever Coffey employed such methods it was for the purpose of stopping Loughrey's rough and tumble attack, so that the latter might be properly gauged.

When Loughrey was on the verge of a knockout on more than one occasion he bent over with his head on a level with his knees and both hands placed over his face. In that way it was impossible for Coffey to put in a finishing punch. So wild Loughrey's attack became as the battle progressed that he missed countless swings, although one of them grazed Referee Haley's jaw. Naturally Coffey, always cool and collected, took good care to keep away from these dangerous blows, but at the same time when a few of them landed on the neck or jaw the Californian showed that he could take them without the slightest indication of weakening.

In short Coffey tried to box strictly according to the rules, while Loughrey did everything but use his teeth. If the Quaker had been willing to stand up for a fair test of skill without hugging the chances are that Coffey would have sent him into Dreamland before the half way mark was reached. Coffey impressed ring sharps with his self-possession, generalship and clean hitting. He is game, determined and powerfully constructed for his weight and inches. In the opinion of good judges he is one of the best middleweights developed by California in recent years and New Yorkers are ready to see more of him. Jeff Smith probably will be his next opponent.

Tom Kennedy, the former amateur heavyweight, has secured a return match with Albert Palmer, former O'Rourke's pupil, who knocked him out in nine rounds four months ago. The bout will be staged by the Royale A. C. in Clarendon Avenue rink, New York, on November 24. Kennedy stopped Marty Cutler, Jack Johnson's sparring partner, in two rounds the other night, but that didn't mean much. Kennedy has taken off thirty pounds since Palmer inserted him with the Indian sign and believes he can turn the tables. But Palmer is steadily improving and O'Rourke says he will repeat in signal fashion.

The appearance of the veteran Dal Hawkins in Coffey's corner revived old memories. Hawkins was a near lightweight champion. He was a tremendous hitter and whipped some of the best men in the class, but it remained for the late Joe Garret to knock him out twice, once in two rounds and again in three, during the campaign of 1906. Hawkins, however, would have been a champion if he could have tackled such lightweights as Volga, Brown, Welsh, Wells, Murphy, Moore and Nelson.

Tex Rickard, who managed the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno, is in New York, after a trip to South America. He visited the Argentine Republic and thinks that the fighting game can be carried on there at a profit. Rickard deplores the fact that there isn't a first class white heavyweight in the ring and says that he wouldn't offer a purse for Johnson to fight anybody, white or black.

Tim Hurst has received praise for his work as referee at the Royale A. C., New York. He seldom tears the men out of clinches and orders in a break in a voice that cannot be heard outside of the ring. He makes it plain that he will not stand for foul tactics and the boxers evidently take stock in what he says. Hurst walks around the edge of the ring and does not obstruct the view of the spectators. The experience of many years as a ring official enables him to see at a glance whether a contestant should be allowed to continue under fire. He will referee some important battles this winter.

Charley Morris has agreed to referee the battle between Carl Morris, the Oklahoma Giant and Denver Jack Geyer at the Olympic A. C. in Harlem tonight. Morris weighed 230 pounds yesterday and looked very fit. As the Olympic ring is ten feet square, Morris thinks he will stop Geyer in half a dozen rounds if not more quickly. Geyer is training at Babylon, L. I. and will tip the beam at about 200 pounds. It will be his first appearance here, but little is known of his real ability.

A gray haired man apparently in feeble health sat in a box at the National Sporting club, New York, Thursday night and enjoyed the Coffey-Loughrey scrap. Twenty years ago he was the backer and manager of Jack McManiffe, then lightweight champion, and of Jacob Shaefer, the billiard player. Dick Roche was known then as a daring soldier of fortune who would risk a fortune on the turn of a card or the result of a horse race. He was a friend of broken down sports and pugilists, and gave liberally to charity. But in recent years Roche has traveled a rocky road, and today he realizes that a man with a bankroll should allow no one to take it away.

GAME BETWEEN PRINCETON AND YALE NOV. 18, LIKELY TO BE HARD BATTLE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 13.—The eleven of Princeton and Yale are ready to clash on the gridiron in their annual game here November 18. As the teams are evenly matched, the coming battle should be bitterly fought from start to finish. Although both elevens have suffered from injuries to star players since the opening of the season, nearly all of them have recovered and are ready for the fray, so the real strength of the teams will be represented on the gridiron November 18. For thirty-six years the Tiger and Bulldog have annually renewed their test of power. Yale and Princeton engaged in their first football game in 1873. After 1873 there was a lapse of three years, and since then the game between these two universities has been an annual event. Yale has twenty victories to her credit, Princeton nine, while seven were tied. The probable lineup of the two elevens on this date will be: Yale—left end, Francis; left tackle, Scully; left guard, Childs; center Ketcham; right guard, McDevitt; right tackle, Perry; right end, Avery; quarterback, Captain

N. E. INVESTMENT CO.

May Pay 50 Per Cent to Investors After Three Years

The business of the New England Investment Co. was recently investigated by Lawyer A. S. Goldman in behalf of his clients, a lady residing in this city, who has $350 invested in the said company, and the result of the investigation as stated by the lawyer, is that in three years the stockholders with probably receive 50 cents on the dollar of the money invested in the corporation.

The woman in question it is claimed purchased stock from an agent of the company who it is alleged told her that the par value of it was $1, while it is claimed it was selling about that time for 50 cents, and she invested $350, paying $250 per share for the said stock. Besides this lady there is quite a number of other stockholders in this city, among those having large amounts in the company being: N. P. Cossette, M. Lepine, A. Beaucage, J. A. Coutin, Edmond Paradis, Joseph Lamoureux, Joseph Delande, Joseph Matte, B. Croteau, Joseph Fournier, Roy, Edouard Arpin, Willie Arpin, William Lapan, David Paradis, and many others, whose investments range from hundreds to thousands.

The most pathetic case is that of the lady referred to, who is over 60 years of age, and not able to work. This woman had a few hundred dollars on which she depended, and now she is penniless, having placed all her funds in the company.

The company as it now stands owns considerable property in Salem, Massachusetts, and other places in New Hampshire. Among its properties are the Manchester Coal & Ice Co., which last year cleared a surplus of $15,000; the Laconia Ice and Coal Co., the Dunstable Granite works, and a lot of real estate in Salem, including a putty factory. About a year ago the company passed into the hands of a receiver, this being followed by the discharge of the organizer and president, Joseph de Champlain, of Manchester, N. H. Later on the receiver was dismissed and Col. William Murcott of Manchester, was appointed president, with the following as directors: Levi Bousquet, of Worcester, Albert J. Przeworski, Eugene Guerin and Phileas P. Monfils of Worcester.

These five men took hold of the company and with $50,000 of borrowed money will endeavor to put the company in the way of paying to the investors a part of the money they have in the company. According to the by-law of the company these men will be in office for three years, and their pay is optional, that is, they can charge whatever they please for their services, and they cannot be interfered with by either the stockholders, or the court. However, no harm can come from this arrangement for the new officers are working faithfully in the interest of the stockholders, but according to many, they will not be able to pay more than 50 cents on the dollar when they liquidate in three years, as is now their intention.

NORTH BILLERICA

The 24th anniversary of the Father Mathew T. A. society of North Billerica will be observed on Thursday, November 16. Several good speakers will be heard and a musical and literary program will be provided. The anniversary committee is composed of the following members: President, John J. Mahoney, Charles E. Cowdrey, Thos. F. Sheridan, Edward R. Costello, Edward Riley, William Taylor, James Bradley, George Ennion, James White, Daniel Fitzpatrick, Joseph Hand, Michael Haynes, Carol J. Delahanty, William Costello, John L. Welsh, Arthur Mahoney, Timothy J. McCarthy, J. F. Mullen, Owen O'Toole, George Hughes.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. Robert Hudson Scott of Boston and Miss Agnes Woodward Overton of this city took place Saturday evening at the home of the bride, 37 Inland street, Rev. James M. Craig of the First Presbyterian church officiating. The best man was James W. Scott, brother of the groom, and the bridesmaid was May C. Overton, a sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Scott left for their honeymoon after the ceremony. They live in Boston.

Fringe Is the Modish Trimming of the Moment

When the Laundress Comes

THE housewife who is asked by her laundress for new ironing cloths will welcome a new arrangement for putting on the cover.

Sets of hoods are sold that can be pinned on to the under edge of the cover and the muslin laced into place in a few minutes. Not only is this method convenient, but there is no excuse for not having frequent fresh cloths.

Another annoyance in the kitchen laundry is the iron holder. Why not do without it entirely? This is managed by using asbestos lined hoods with wooden handles. When clapped on the iron the heat is kept in it and away from the hand, and it is possible to iron longer with a single heating while your fingers are not blistered.

Every laundry should be equipped with flounce irons. These have an extended point that runs into tucks and plaits and flounces and prevents the folds from being creased and flattened.

Much sorting and mending of stockings will be saved if small buttons are put at the top of each pair and the two stockings held together with a tape during the process of washing and ironing. This is an easier method than putting marks on every pair of stockings for the darning often forgets what the marks mean.

Hanging out small articles is facilitated if handkerchiefs, collars and the like are pinned smoothly on a big towel with small pins and the towel pinned to the line instead of each article being pinned separately.

Much room on the line is saved in this way; also the clothes may be more quickly taken down in case of rain.

Dress Up the Second Season Coat Like This

DESCRIPTION OF THE FASHIONS OF TODAY

THE canny girl is now putting a modish collar and cuff set of velvet or bengaline silk, bordered with fringe, on her last year's coat, thus bringing it up to date. The collar and cuffs illustrated are of black panne velvet with a border of black silk fringe.

THE up to the minute maid now has fringe on her hats as well as on her frocks, wraps and reticules. The big black hat in the picture is of velvet bordered with white silk fringe, and the white wired silk quill is also edged with fringe.

BLACK and white costumes are still the favorites of Mme. La Mode, and the handsome gown of white satin to be found among the illustrations is of white satin with a tunic of black Brussels net embroidered in black jet. On the skirt is a charming arrangement of white silk and crystal fringe caught here and there with a pale pink rose. The hat is made of black velvet and white lace, with a cluster of silk rosebuds at one side.

ONE carries to the opera or theater now a graceful and very picturesque bag slung on long cord handles. It contains fan, opera glasses, vanity outfit and all the other little belongings a dainty woman likes to have at hand. The reticule seen in the cut is made of rose silk embroidered with gold soutache and matches the cap of macramé lace over rose silk with trimming of gold fringe.

TO appreciate the costume illustrated one must see the glorious shimmer and sheen on this exquisite creation of tawny gold panne velvet. The velvet tunic is buttoned crosswise almost to the bottom of the skirt, where it is cut up for a few inches to display a petticoat of gold-satin. The bodice is trimmed in a very novel fashion with bands of sable over a gulmp of white malines lace.

RAINY DAY OUTFIT

EVERY girl who goes daily to business should possess a rainy day outfit—that is, a special raincoat and skirt which she wears only when the weather is hopelessly wet.

The rainy day skirt, of course, is short and quite plain whatever the prevailing fashion may be.

With it is worn a neat white shirt waist.

Instead of petticoats a pair of bloomers are most convenient.

The raincoat can be made at home from a good pattern and must have as its material a waterproof cloth.

This with care should last for at least

THE "INSPECTION VISIT."

ONE of the most trying times in a girl's life is what is usually called the "inspection visit" to the family of the man to whom she is engaged.

Such a lot depends on this visit that very often the poor little fiancee is so nervous that she makes anything but a good impression. It is particularly trying if the families live at a distance from each other and she has never met them before, for then she is able to torture herself with all kinds of questions. "Will his father like me?" she wonders, and "What will his mother think of me? And the girls—what will they say?"

The best thing for her to do is to go prepared to like all the family and to make them like her. This is half the battle. And don't forget that his mother knew him before he knew you, and don't resent any little attentions he may pay her.

Milady Wears Fringe on Her Hat

NO ECONOMY IN FOOTWEAR THIS SEASON.

YOU cannot economize on your feet this season, when they are so much in evidence, and it behooves every woman to take up the two subjects together, the kind of suit she is going to buy and the kind of shoes she will get to go with it.

And if she is ultra smart she will try to bring her suit into harmony with the newest footwear fad, white garters and black pumps, to wear with her dark tailor made.

Should she be opposed to so striking a combination she can soften the effect by wearing elephant gray garters instead of the white ones. These are fastened at the top by smoke pearl or gunmetal buttons. Elephant gray tops to patent leather shoes are "he made in Paris; also brown suede uppers and black lowers. It certainly looks as if the conventional black shoe would not be seen much this winter, which is very hard on the woman with large feet.

Fortunately, though, this is not a day of No. 2 shoes, and the woman who wears a larger size has no hesitancy in adopting gayly colored stockings with her black pumps or colored uppers on her black boots.

With slippers and low shoes emerald green silk stockings are the smart thing when they fit into the scheme of the gown. They are particularly stunning with an all white or all black costume.

There is a new black silk stocking that is having a great vogue. It is an openwork stocking with a wall of Troy design running in straight lines from the toe to the knees. The pattern is rather small and is like a black mesh. A swiss coverlet would also add to the daintiness of the bed.

A Study In Black and White

THE BEST WAY—

TO clean a gas mantle is to remove the globe, get a salt shaker and shake all the salt on it that it will hold, turn on the gas light and let it burn until all the black is off, turn on the light, replace the globe and light in the usual way and you will find the light restored to its former brilliancy. Try this if the mantle is black and burns poorly.

To clean white fur—mouset, rabbit, swansdown and ermine—first beat out all the dust, gently, but thoroughly; then lay the article upon a table covered with a clean white cloth and saturate it with a mixture made of grain alcohol, three parts, and one of ether. With a clean whisk broom work the fluid into every part of the hair and down to the skin. Then sit into the fur all the benzoic tallow it will hold, lifting the fur so that the powder

ACID FOR INK STAINS.

A woman had the misfortune of dropping a penful of ink on her desk and not discovering it until after it had penetrated into the wood.

She thought of using the ink eraser, but feared to harm the wood by using it, but at last through some good fortune she hit on an idea of making a solution of a few drops of nitric acid in a teaspoonful of water. She took a feather and touched the spots, quickly wiping with a wet cloth. This was repeated until the ink stains had disappeared. She then brightened the spot with a bit of furniture oil, and no one would be able to tell that an ink blotch had been on the desk top.

PACHOUROS ACQUITTED

LOWELL OFFENDERS FOUND NOT GUILTY

Appeared in the Superior Court in East Cambridge Today

The following Lowell cases were discussed at this morning's session of the criminal superior court in East Cambridge:

Arthur Lesage, charged with adultery, and who had been sentenced in the lower court to 6 months in jail, and appealed, was placed on probation. Ethel Roberts, on an appeal from the reformatory, was placed in the care of the probation officer. Thomas Burns, who for larceny had been sentenced to the reformatory, and who appealed from the court's decision, was placed on probation. There were two counts against him, but one was placed on file. Jas. J. Burns had been sentenced to the state farm for drunkenness, but in superior court he was placed on probation. Michael J. Tobin had been sentenced to three months in jail, and his sentence was changed to two months to the same institution.

Received One Year

William Burke was sentenced to one year in the house of correction for breaking, entering and larceny of a suit of clothes, a ring and a bracelet, at Lowell, all of which he had on his person with the exception of the bracelet. He claimed to belong in Lewiston, Me., but the probation officer looked him up and found that he was not known there.

Theodore Houle charged with drunkenness, having been arrested from a house in Elliot street, was continued for sentence.

Oscar Bryant was called for sentence for larceny of 39 hens, the property of DeLacy Corkum of Billerica, his former employer. Mr. Corkum notified the court that Bryant had worked for him a long time and that he had always found him to be an honest man. He was placed on probation.

Lowell Man Was Accused of Murder
in Second Degree

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 13.—Arguments for both the state and the defense in the case of Michael Pachouros, charged with second degree murder for causing the death of John Germanakos, had not been completed when a recess was taken today in the Middlesex county superior criminal court and it was expected that the case would be given to the jury this afternoon. Judge McLaughlin delivered his charge to the jury immediately after the noon recess. It is alleged that Pachouros and a companion killed

Germanakos at Lowell last March. Pachouros' companion escaped. Judge McLaughlin's charge to the jury was short and the case was given to the jury shortly after two o'clock this afternoon. Pachouros was found not guilty.

COMPENSATION ACT
Will be Discussed at the Board of Trade

The directors of the board of trade will meet next Wednesday evening at the board of trade rooms and hear recommendations from the executive committee and transact other routine business. The executive committee will meet at 4:30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. Arrangements are being made for a full meeting of the board to be held on Wednesday evening, November 22, when an address on the provisions and scope of the Workingmen's Compensation act will be given by John A. Lowell, of Boston, a chairman of the Workingmen's Compensation commission appointed by the legislature. Another speaker will be furnished by the Massachusetts district police to talk on factory inspection which is closely related to the workmen's compensation act. These addresses will be of great interest to employers of labor, great and small, and a large attendance is expected.

COURT OF APPEALS

Denied Beattie's Petition for a Writ of Error

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 13.—The supreme court of appeals today denied the petition for writ of error by Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., convicted of murdering his young wife last July. This decision on the appeal from the judgment of the Chesterfield court which sentenced him to die in the electric chair November 4 is final. Clemency or reprieve by Governor Mann only can save the condemned man.

Beattie's last hope of judicial interference was dashed when the supreme court announced that "the trial court was plainly correct in its ruling and the appeal is therefore denied." No further comment was made on the case.

Powerful influences are said to be at work upon Governor Mann for and against either commutation or pardon. It is believed he will not intervene. The governor, who is in Petersburg with Governor Ross at the Massachusetts university, is expected to issue a statement tomorrow.

INCORPORATION ACT

Discussed by President and Attorney General

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—President Taft today discussed with Attorney General Wickersham the advisability of supplemental anti-trust legislation at the coming session of congress. The conference related particularly to the likelihood of passing a federal incorporation act. It was pointed out that a provision of this kind might be made to allow corporations whose methods of doing business were in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law to reorganize under a federal act. It is known that the president has in mind renewing his recommendations along these lines in his message to congress. Senator Smoot, who had a long talk with the president, however, expressed the opinion that it would be impossible to pass any anti-trust legislation whatsoever at the coming session of congress. He said he believed congress could not be induced to touch the subject at all until it was convinced that a complete solution of the trust problem had been found. Senator Smoot said he believed that proposed currency reform legislation was in about the same position and he doubted seriously that the Aldrich plan would be adopted now. The tariff legislation, the senator declared, was sure to be passed, and he said he expected to see the woolen, cotton and metal schedules revised.

Secretary Fisher conferred with the president regarding legislation for the department of Alaska. President Taft has approved Secretary Fisher's ideas and will present them to congress in his message. Senator Smoot also declared that Alaskan legislation would receive favorable consideration by the next congress.

BRYANT'S POND, Me., Nov. 13.—Unable to find oars with which to row to the assistance of Charles Jacobs when Jacobs' canoe was overturned in Bryant's Pond today, Floyd Morgan seized a short board and paddled out in his rowboat to the struggling man. MATRIMONIAL

A pretty wedding was solemnized this morning when Mr. Joseph Roberts and Miss Edouardina Berger were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 7 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Charles Paquette, O. M. I. The young couple were attended by Messrs. Jean Baptiste Dolivet and Irene Robert. After the ceremony the party repaired to the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irene Robert, 9 Whiting street, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives of the contracting couple. Mr. and Mrs. Robert left on the 8:55 o'clock train for Boston where they will spend four days. On their return they will be tendered a reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 9 Whiting street.

STORM GUARDS

SHOULD BE SET UP ON CENTRALVILLE BRIDGE

The people of Centralville want the storm guards placed on Centralville bridge at once. The recent high winds have caused no end of annoyance to those who travel across the bridge, and men particularly have been in danger of losing their hats. There is a call for the storm guards and the sooner they are placed in position the better will they be appreciated.

BADLY INJURED

MAN FELL INTO AN ELEVATOR PIT

At 2:02 o'clock this afternoon the ambulance was called to the Klison Machine shop in Dutton street, where a man named Joseph Parent, residing in Alton street, was taken out of an elevator pit where he had fallen. The man was removed to the Lowell hospital, but at the time of going to press the extent of his injuries was not known.

VERDICT OF $7000

In the Case of Huston vs.
Boston & Maine

At the opening of the civil session of the superior court this morning the sealed verdicts in the cases of Fredland L. Huston vs. Boston & Maine were read. In the first case in which the administrator sued for the death of Sarah J. Huston, the jury returned a verdict of $7000 for the plaintiff. In the second case in which the suit was brought for the consolation suffering of the deceased the verdict was for the defendant.

Judge Morton presided over the session, taking the place of Judge King who opened it.

Before proceeding with the next case Judge Morton heard Lawyers William D. Regan and A. S. Howard and assigned a date for hearing a demurrer in the case of J. S. Hastings vs. F. W. and S. J. Quin, an action of contract.

Suit for Wages

The case of Mrs. Zilpha Davis of Jamaica Plain, Boston, vs. Fred W. Kent, administrator of the estate of the late William Small of Boston and Gloucester for wages alleged to be owed the plaintiff as housekeeper at a farm owned by the defendant in Raleigh, N. H., near Portsmouth, amounting to $2295. Mrs. Davis alleges that the deceased who was the proprietor of a hotel in Gloucester, Mass., engaged her to keep house at the farm for his young daughter who at the time was attending high school at Portsmouth, N. H. She attended these duties for several years, incidentally frequently taking care of the animals on the farm, horses and cows, in the absence of the hired man. In all the time she was employed she testified she received but $200, about $50 of which she spent on the house. She placed a value of $5 per week on her services. She alleges that Mr. Small when asked why he did not pay her regular wages admitted owing her, but said that he intended to give her all in a lump sum so that she might save it. He was seized with a stroke of apoplexy and while ill repeated his intention of paying her, but a second stroke brought on his death unexpectedly and Mrs. Davis was never paid. The case took up the entire morning session.

Court this Afternoon

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 13.—After a conference today between Judge McLaughlin, Dist. Atty. Mr. Higgins will present evidence later, it was said, to show that the grand jury, as a body, returned an indictment against Palmer charging perjury with the recent investigation of the Middlesex county affairs. At the conference this forenoon, Mr. Whipple asked that a hearing be given immediately. This was opposed by the district attorney.

LOST HIS HAT

BUT LITTLE CHAP GOT A NEW ONE

A little chap named Boisclair, aged about 5 years, lost his hat in the canal this noon while crossing the Aiken street bridge. The little fellow who lives in Moody street was returning home after going on an errand for his mother, and while crossing the bridge, a gale of wind caught his hat and carried it into the waters below. The boy watched his head gear for a while and suddenly started crying and made a rush for his home.

Undertaker Albert who was coming out of his shop met the boy and after being apprised of his misfortune, took him along with him to a nearby store and there purchased a brand new hat for him. The boy, tickled to death, thanked Mr. Albert and ran home, saying he would tell his mother how good Monsieur Albert was to him.

MONUMENT UNVEILED

Memorial Dedicated to Bay State Soldiers and Sailors

PETERSBURG, Va., Nov. 13.—A notable Blue and Gray reunion culminated here today in the unveiling of the Crater battlefield of the handsome granite monument erected by the state of Massachusetts to its soldiers and sailors dead who fell there in the war between the states. Governor Eugene Foss of Massachusetts and Governor Mann of Virginia participated in the ceremonies. The unveiling was preceded by a parade through the city in which the P. I. Wilcox post, G. A. R., and L. A. Tifle camp, Sons of Veterans of Springfield, Mass., the Petersburg, Norfolk, and Richmond camps of Confederate veterans and sons of veterans, the Petersburg Grays, National guard, members of the state staffs of Governor Mann and Foss and the monument commission took part. The States and Stripes, Confederate flags and the Virginia state flag appeared in the procession. The streets were lined with the people whose cheers nearly drowned the rattling of the drum corps to which the old warriors stepped.

At the battlefield, Miss Oleta Mahone, granddaughter of General William Mahone, who led the charge on the Crater, drew aside the huge American flag placed over the monument Friday by Colonel James Anderson of Springfield. Governor Mann delivered an address of welcome, then Colonel Anderson, chairman of the monument commission, transferred the shaft to Governor Foss, who in turn presented it to the people of Virginia through Governor Mann. A. S. Rose of Wor-chester, Mass., delivered the oration. During the days the Massachusetts visitors have been here the ex-confederates have tried to outdo them as royally as the Virginians were entertained July 4, 1910, by the Grand Army men at Springfield. A banquet at Robert E. Lee school tonight will be the closing event of the visit.

CATHOLIC NEWS

Feast of Blessed Virgin Observed Yesterday

At St. Peter's church yesterday high mass was sung by Rev. John T. O'Brien and the sermon appropriate to the feast of the patronage of the blessed virgin was given by Rev. John F. Burns. At the conclusion of the service, Rev. Burns presided over the departure of Cardinal-Designate O'Connell for Rome on Saturday. He said that he was among the thousands who went to Boston to bid goodbye to the new cardinal and the demonstration was a strikingly beautiful tribute of loyalty and love such as seldom is seen. Dr. Keleher said that he had a brief interview with Cardinal O'Connell and that the latter desired him to convey to the people of St. Peter's and Lowell, an assurance of his love and interest in them. "Dear old Lowell," said the cardinal with deep feeling, and he could say no more for the magnitude of the reception given him was overwhelming. Dr. Keleher referred to the significance of the invitation extended by the Kaiser, one of the world's greatest potentates, to Cardinal O'Connell and pointed out that he would become a prominent figure in the councils of the church and in conclusion as asked the prayers of the congregation for the cardinal's intentions.

St. Peter's Holy Name society held a meeting at St. Paul's chapel last evening with a large attendance. Rev. John F. Burns, spiritual director, officiated, and there was singing by the Holy Name society choir under the direction of James R. Donnelly.

The work of tearing down the old church building in Gorham street is progressing, the work having been moved during the past week. While no official announcement has been made relative to the building of the new school, it is believed that the work will be begun in the spring.

Act That Impressed

F. R. GREENOUGH WAS INTERESTINGLY TOLD

When seen recently at his home, No. 10 Tenth place, city, Mr. F. R. Greenough spoke interestingly regarding his experience with the new tonic "Tona Vita," now being introduced in Lowell by specialists sent here for that purpose.

Mr. Greenough said: "I have been sick for over two years, after having had an operation. I have taken every kind of medicine that I thought would do me any good to gain back my strength, but with poor results. Neither the doctor's treatment nor the medicines that I took gave me any relief and I was beginning to give up hope."

"A short time ago," continued Mr. Greenough, "I read an ad. in the paper about 'Tona Vita.' I went to the drug store where this medicine was being introduced. I liked the way the specialists went about things. I heard one of them tell a woman that they did not think the medicine would benefit her troubles and therefore did not want her to buy it. This act impressed me so that I bought a bottle. After taking it several days I began to improve and have continued getting better each day. I now sleep fine and what I eat I enjoy, because it agrees with me. I know of other people who are also taking this tonic and have been benefited with it. I know it is the best medicine I have ever tried."

"Mr. Greenough's trouble was pure and simple nervous debility, which is likely to be found existing in any Lowell family," said one of the specialists sent here to introduce "Tona Vita," this morning. "Half of the people of Lowell find life a burden and have little real happiness as a result of this modern plague," continued he.

"Such people, and there are lots of them, have uncertain appetites, poor digestion, uneasy sleep, little ambition and they feel too tired for the simplest work most of the time. They suffer with timidity, have no initiative, are droopy and haven't enough go, rich blood in their veins to make them capable or self-reliant. Their nerves are pitched to such an extent that they imagine themselves afflicted with various diseases at various times. The real trouble with them is debility, produced by the strain of modern life they are forced to lead. There is little of this ailment among the people of the country, the freedom of which permits them to observe nature's limitations."

"Tona Vita" will positively remove this miserable condition. If it fails to prove satisfactory, it costs nothing, as the medicine must do the work, or we don't want money for it."

The specialists who are here introducing "Tona Vita" are giving demonstrations of what the preparation will do. All day long they met callers at the Hall & Lyon drug store, from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

DR. JOS. E. LAMOUREUX STORM WAS SEVERE

Selected as Candidate for Mayor Heavy Damage Caused in Boston and Vicinity Last Night at Meeting Held Yesterday

An enthusiastic meeting of local voters was held in C. M. A. C. hall yesterday afternoon to discuss the question of naming a candidate for the municipal government under the new charter. The hall was literally filled and besides the 800 people who were present, a number of others were turned away for lack of room. The meeting was opened at 2 o'clock by President Xavier Delisle of the C. M. A. C., who in appropriate terms turned the hall over to the assembly.

Messrs. L. P. Turcotte and Xavier Delisle were unanimously chosen president and secretary respectively of the meeting. The chairman in brief remarks explained the purpose of the gathering, saying that it was a meeting of American citizens, and that the

was received with cheers and applause and this was kept up until he reached the stage. Mr. Turcotte then explained to the doctor the object of the meeting and asked him if he would agree to the wish of the meeting and be a candidate for mayor. Dr. Lamoureux was inclined to refuse the nomination, saying that as a member of the former committee of 60, it involved a question of delicacy and honor, whether he be a candidate or not, and that furthermore, his business prevented him from answering immediately a question that meant so much, but he asked until Tuesday morning, at which time he will give a definite answer.

At this point Councilman Genest made a motion that if the doctor agrees to be a candidate for mayor, he be the only man in line for office. The motion was carried. An executive committee to look after the work entailed in the support of a candidate was named as follows: Dr. Rodrigue Mignault, Thomas J. Goyette, Henri Achin, Jr., L. P. Turcotte and Arthur Genest. This group of men started in their work last night and will continue until election day.

The meeting came to a close at 5:45 o'clock with a rising vote of thanks to the C. M. A. C. for the use of its hall.

CHARLES DICKENS

Was the Friend of the People

Hon. J. W. Fairbank of Boston lectured at the First Trinitarian Congregational church Sunday night. His subject was "Why Charles Dickens Slept in Westminster Abbey."

Mr. Fairbank first referred to the birth of Dickens in 1812, and to the hardships encountered by Dickens in boyhood, hardships which undoubtedly influenced the author and gave to his works an effectiveness that would otherwise have been impossible.

The speaker alluded to a number of the Dickens characters, including "Little Nell," "Tiny Tim," "Scrooge" and "Pikewick," and said that if he had contributed no more to literature than "Little Nell," he would still be sure of a permanent name. The simplicity, and sincerity and the Christian-like traits of Dickens were commented upon, and their relation to the novelist's success emphasized.

"The death of Dickens in 1870," said Mr. Fairbank, "was the occasion for sorrow throughout the civilized world, and the tributes paid to the man from high and low, rich and poor, were proof of the affection of the people everywhere for him. That he should have a place in Westminster Abbey with other immortals is but proper."

FRIENDS OF RUEF

Seek to Have Him Released on Bail

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—The movement to get Abe Ruef out of San Quentin prison, where he is serving a fourteen year term for grafting in this city, has gained such force that it seems likely that he may go free. Franklin K. Lane, interstate commerce commissioner, and Brand Whitlock, mayor of Toledo, have signed the petition asking for the release of Ruef on parole. There is a general feeling that Ruef has been a scapegoat. He was convicted at a time when the conviction of any of the accused men would have been easy, but all the others charged with grafting escaped.

KILLED BY A FALL

Investigation Into Death of Lawrence Man

LAWRENCE, Nov. 13.—Daniel Murphy, aged 51, of 25 Florence street, died yesterday morning under circumstances that prompted an investigation by the authorities. As a result, it was the opinion of Medical Examiner Dow that death followed a probable concussion of the brain, caused by a fall. Murphy was married.

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—A 40-mile gale of wind that wrecked stores and houses, felled gigantic trees and blocked poles, caused chimney fires, blocked streets, car traffic, crippled electric lighting and telephone service, and caused thousands of dollars of damage in and about Boston and among the ships in the harbor, swept through Massachusetts from the Middle West yesterday afternoon and evening.

The wind started which was first in evidence during the early part of the afternoon, increased in velocity during the evening hours, until a rate of 40 miles an hour was registered. As the velocity decreased a terrific down-pour of rain and hail flooded the streets, causing a cessation of electric car service in some sections.

The downpour had scarcely ceased when the temperature began a speedy descent, and with it came a snow storm. The mercury continued to drop throughout the evening.

Windows Demolished
For several hours Boston and its surrounding towns and cities were in the very apex of the storm. The damage done in this section was not confined to any one spot. Trees and poles were blown down in all the outlying districts and even in the crowded locations of the business sections of the city, heavy plate glass windows were demolished and hundreds of dollars worth of goods damaged. A flag pole was blown to the ground on Hanover street, severely injuring a pedestrian.

In the Dorchester district a large tree demolished by the wind was blown to the ground, carrying with it electric light and telephone wires and leaving that section of the city in darkness. Large branches of trees throughout the section were blown down and several wires broken.

At Elysi Park avenue, West Roxbury, a large billboard was blown down, and John Mulvey who was passing narrowly escaped injury by jumping hastily from its path. Crossed wires caused the extinguishing of lights in certain sections of that district.

The force of the gale caused two chimney fires in East Boston. Lights were extinguished and car service interfered with.

Several trees were felled in Chelsea. On Boylston street, Brookline, three telegraph poles were blown down, and lightning and telephone service discontinued for a time. In Cambridge a detail of police and firemen were dispatched to clear away wreckage of trees left by the storm. Lights were extinguished in the Cambridgeport, Harvard square and North Cambridge sections of the city. In fact a trail of destruction followed the gale in every locality.

Felled by Flagpole
But one serious injury was reported in Boston, that of Gaetano Lanni of 215 Hanover street, who, while on his way home, was struck by a heavy flagpole and its iron supports that was blown from the second story of a Hanover street building. He was knocked to the ground, and for a time he was thought to be dead. He was taken to the Relief hospital, where he revived, his wounds were dressed and he was taken to his home.

Thomas DeMasse of 3 Davis street, Malden, narrowly escaped electrocution last night when a horse driven by him stepped upon a live wire that had been blown to the ground. The horse died immediately, and although DeMasse felt the effects of the shock he managed to jump from the carriage in time to escape death. He was injured, but none of the injuries, however, is serious.

A considerable amount of damage was sustained by shipowners and yachtsmen. The fleet of schooners and barges anchored in the harbor yesterday continually dragged their anchors during the storm. The coal barges Pilgrim and Ellenville, on the South Boston flats, blown across the channel until they brought up against the East Boston flats. Here distress signals were sounded and tow boats sent to their rescue.

Alonzo Owen; secretary and treasurer, James Sheehan; sergeant-at-arms, Joseph Lavigne; trustee for three years, James D. Brown; executive board, John Orrell, W. Louney, William Elvin, John Wilson and James Larkin; walking delegates, John D. Brown and Alfred Hampton. After the business meeting refreshments were served and remarks were made by Messrs. Owens, Orrell, Wilson, Elvin and President Griffiths. The latter was elected for the fourth time. Under his wise and zealous administration the organization has made great strides and his re-election was a mark of appreciation by the members.

LOSS IS $7000

FARM BUILDINGS AT FARMINGTON, N. H., DESTROYED

FARMINGTON, N. H., Nov. 13.—The Willowdale Farm buildings, a mile out of this village on the Rochester road, were burned yesterday forenoon, with a loss of about $7000. Only the front part of the dwelling was saved. A large barn and outbuildings were burned, together with farming tools and several tons of hay. The buildings were unoccupied, but were soon to be used.

The fire started in the barn and is thought to have been set by a tramp. The blaze was discovered by Engineer Webber of the train from Dover at 10:30 a. m. and he arrived here about nine. He notified Station Agent C. F. Reed, who telephoned to the Village Fire department.

Owing to there being no steam up at the factories it was necessary to ring the alarm from the church bells. The firemen arrived in season to save a small part of the house.

Willowdale Farm was one of the finest country estates in this section. It was owned by T. F. Green, a local baker who is now in the city. It is reported that he will rebuild. There was no insurance on the barn, but on the house there was $1000 insurance.

DIED SUDDENLY

GIRL STRICKEN AFTER CHEERING FOOTBALL TEAM

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 13.—Barbara Newbold, a senior in the Concord High school, is believed to have given her life as a result of the school celebration at the victory of the football team over Nashua High, Saturday afternoon. The students turned out in unusual numbers and Miss Newbold participated in the school songs and cheers throughout the contest. Just as the game was about to end a celebration which lasted for nearly two hours. The students paraded the streets, cheering and singing.

Miss Newbold was rather delicate, but of a very excitable nature, and she became much wrought up and fatigued by the excitement. This was noticed when she went to spend the night at the home of a girl friend at Wheelers Corner.

Early yesterday morning she was seized with hemorrhages of the lungs and died before her parents could reach her. There seems to be no doubt that the strain upon the young girl induced the hemorrhages, as she had never had them previously.

A shadow has been cast over the entire school, as Miss Newbold was very popular among the students. She is the daughter of Ernest Newbold of Church street, a well-known granite manufacturer.

PROF. ZUEBLIN

Spoke at Grace Church Last Night

HIS SUBJECT WAS "MAN AND WOMAN"

He Says Man Has Not Made Good—Politics Is a Part of Life—Mr. Zueblin Says That in the Larger Life We Shall All Be Politicians

Professor Charles Zueblin lectured at the Grace church last night. It was his second in the "Social Forum" series and the attendance was so large that extra seats had to be provided. Prof. Zueblin's subject was "Man and Woman." He said in part:

"We often hear objections made to many reforms, based upon the claim that in order to have them it will be necessary to change human nature. That might be a recommendation for many reforms. If there is anything that needs changing, or that has been changed in the history of the world, it is human nature. There was a time when our ancestors ate each other—and that was human nature. There was a time when they owned each other—and that was human nature. Still we have people who believe in killing each other—and they call that human nature. Human nature changes with every age, with every century, almost with every generation. Why not go on changing human nature? It is man's business, at this stage, to take care of evolution. You will find as you ride—to the shame of civilization—in the great trans-continental trains, the people are better looking than the people on the little side country roads, where they are bowed down by labor. They have advantages that make them at least look a little different. These forces are at work all the time, why don't we guide them—why sit down like puny savages and let nature do what it will with us—even making us savages?"

"This dependence of woman, due very largely to her economic dependence, is primarily due to her being a mother, or a potential mother, and tied down at home. She was brought up to wait until her man found her out of the universe. She has come to like this situation, where she is an object of attention; and man, whose vanity is flattered, of course likes it. Therefore, boys and girls are not allowed to grow up human beings, but men and women. The whole trend is not nature's work, but very largely man's unconscious design. Nature's method is to make the male attractive in various ways; man's way is to make the male attractive by his pocketbook, so he can provide these sources of adornment for the women. It all goes to make man dominant, even over woman's spiritual nature, and her motherhood. For women are compelled to marry for their support. Most of them marry for love, but so far as our economic system goes, that is of little account."

"So long as women are made dependent, we naturally have a distorted view of the nature of the sexes."

"Nearly six millions of women are working in the industries of the United States.—In this country where the men are so proud that the women are very queens, where they shelter them from all the degrading labor that you see in the fields of Germany (for instance, where they won't let their women soil their fingers with the contamination of public life! But they can work in the grind of the factory. Why? Not because men have driven them, or even want them there; but they are driven out by inventions. Women are told that she must stay at home and take care of the children. Well, even the children of the rich grow up some time, if they are not sent too young into the mills."

"Those women in the industries, going to their daily work, losing the sense of the home, the sense of man's work, frequently in the factory and office; and many of them would think it unduly to go to the polls. But it is madly to go all day long in the struggle with men for making money, if we must prevent women from taking part in politics, then it is consistent to pass laws that will keep them out of industries and send them back home to wait until a man comes for them."

"One objection to women in political life,—not to be dismissed with a sneer,—is that they will be contaminated. One thoughtful man said to me the other night, the women would not like it. You cannot blame them. It must be uncomfortable for a gentleman to go to those same polls; and so many of them do not go! But is American politics necessarily corrupt? Is our public life permanently corrupt? Let the women show you how bad the polls are, and they won't be so bad, very long."

"One of the first things that they did in Seattle, when the women got the suffrage, was to recall a mayor who was the friend of the mass of the people who did that. Shortly after their mayor was elected, there was a recall movement against him, and our friends opposed said, 'See what comes of woman suffrage! See how hysterical they are!' And the enemies of the referendum decided that measure. The fact was, that in the first place, the moment the women got the ballot in their hands they decided for virtue instead of vice in Seattle, and the moment they got their man, or the people who were beaten tried to get up a recall, and they lost. When the people vote right both times, you have a pretty good credit mark for the newly enfranchised women and the men. If your politics in Lowell is bad, it is because the people are bad. No rascal is ever elected twice to office, by an honest constituency. If politics is crooked it is because business wants it crooked. Until we can understand that politics is a part of life, we will not understand woman suffrage at all. We will not even understand manhood suffrage.

"This man-made world would not be so bad a place, if the men had made good; but they haven't. Every one of us has a share in the political situation of our country, and denounces the incompetency of our municipal, state and national government; and then we say to the women you don't know so much about it as we do and if you come in you will be contaminated. I think that the women will make fools of themselves in politics. They will have possibly blame them. Do you know that in Lynn they have elected a man that can't be found just because he was on a certain spot in the ticket? One of the great faults in our arguments on any subject is that we argue the thing that is at a disadvantage with the ideal thing that does not exist."

When we argue on the question of woman suffrage you compare a narrow weak untutored woman with the perfect man that never existed. It is said that women do not take advantage now of their opportunity to vote for school committees. Well, when men have decided whom to elect, the women have been asked to help elect them. I believe that women ought to prove their desire for the suffrage, by voting for school committees; but I do not think it ought to keep them from having the suffrage, because they do not. I do not believe that a school system can be properly conducted, without both men and women. By this cooperation, we are going to prove how absurd it is to assume that men are omniscient and women are incompetent. In the larger life we shall all be politicians, as we are all citizens; and we are going to realize that woman suffrage is only one of the steps in the passage from the police state to the welfare state."

COMMON SENSE IN MEDICINE

The Wealthy Can Afford Doctors and Nurses.

Many Good People "Cannot Afford to be Sick."

Proprietary Medicines Prove Efficient and Economical.

Wealthy families do not feel obliged to consider the matter of expense in case medical treatment is needed. They can afford to consult physicians, to get prescriptions and to have medicines specially put up for them. Most families, however,—and they are the bone and sinew of the country, intelligent, prudent, economical men and women,—have so little to go and come on that professional services are out of the question, except where they are absolutely necessary. These families, these millions of men and women of "common sense in medicine" to avail themselves of the leading proprietary medicines, which are so remarkably effective and so easily obtainable.

The makers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are justified in saying that for all the diseases and ailments for which this great medicine is recommended thousands of families have found it entirely satisfactory. It is unquestionably the leading proprietary medicine for impure blood, lack of strength, that tired feeling, loss of appetite, and for severe troubles, such as rheumatism, eczema or salt rheum, catarrh, blood-poisoning, bad sores, scrofula and other diseases.

It has effected more cures than any other medicine. Harry D. Frink, Gloverville, N. Y., says: "I had a large bunch on my neck, which appeared to be scrofula. I had taken a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and the bunch was entirely disappeared."

Any preparation said to be "just as good" as Hood's Sarsaparilla is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit. Insist on having Hood's, and get it today in its usual liquid form or tablets called Sarsatabs.

BODY FOUND IN WOODS SWEEPED BY TORNADO

Aged Nashua Woman Wandered Away From Her Home Eight Persons Killed and Property Was Badly Damaged

NASHUA, Nov. 12.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Mrs. Belle Whittemore, an aged resident of Elm street, six weeks ago was solved yesterday morning by the finding of her body in the woods.

Fred Tessier and another young man were running the woods along the Dunstable road, two miles southwest of the city, when about 9:30 o'clock they discovered the body of a woman in a clump of trees half a mile back of the farm of Augustus Blain. The police were notified and Patrolman Charles Desmarais and Deputy Medical Referee Benjamin G. Moran went to the scene.

Dr. Moran authorized the removal of the body to an undertaker's, where it was identified by Rev. J. B. Cross, Mrs. Whittemore's pastor. The body was scantily clad, nearly all the garments having been taken off by the woman herself, it is believed, as the medical referee found no cause for suspicion of foul play. In the pockets of her gown, which lay nearby, were four apples.

The theory of the authorities is that Mrs. Whittemore became mentally deranged and wandered away into the woods and when she disrobed and laid down she had the idea that she was going to bed.

The body was buried in Woodland cemetery yesterday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Cross officiating.

Mrs. Whittemore was 75 years old, the widow of Charles A. Whittemore, and had lived for many years in Nashua. She supported herself and was a member of the Disciples church.

She had no relatives in Nashua, but when she disappeared a reward was offered by her friends in and out of the church for any news concerning her. She had shown no signs of mental trouble previously.

BEATEN BY THUGS

Waverly Hotel Waiter Assaulted in Central St.

One of the colored waiters at the Waverly hotel was the victim of a brutal assault in Central street at the Hamilton wall on Saturday night at the hands and feet of a quartet of young thugs. He was on his way home and when at a particularly dark spot almost up to Howard's drug store he was set upon by his assailants, who knocked him down and applied the "boots" to him until frightened away by the gathering crowd. The thugs made their escape down Hurd and Warren streets and were not apprehended. This part of Central street is poorly lighted at night after the stores have extinguished their lights and it gave the thugs an opportunity to start in on their brutal work without being detected until they had accomplished their object.

SUGAR TRUST HEARING
NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The final hearings on the dissolution of the so-called sugar and steamship trust which were to be held before the full circuit court today were postponed until Dec. 1 by District Attorney Wise.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Nov. 12.—Splintered timbers, broken furniture, crumpled rock and plaster, scattered farm produce and dead farm animals littered the ground in an area a quarter of a mile wide and 20 miles long indicative of the tremendous force with which southern Wisconsin's worst tornado swept a path Saturday through Rock county. Eight persons were killed by it, and many more were injured, and damage was wrought to the extent of nearly a million dollars.

Of the injured, one, Albert Schmidt, 11 years old, living near Hanover, will die. His father and two sisters are dead. At least one more may die. The dead: Anton Schmidt, 55 years old, Hanover; Alice Schmidt, 18 years old, daughter of Anton Schmidt; Reggie Schmidt, 14 years old, sister of Alice Schmidt; Helen Austin, five years old, Milton; Mrs. John Crowder; Mrs. Elizabeth Proeder; Leo Lentz, 16 years old, Hanover; Amy Korbin, eight years old.

Wire service was demoralized Saturday night and it was not until yesterday that details of the catastrophe were obtained. A steady rain added to the confusion Saturday night and made identification of the dead difficult.

Nearly to Zero
Saturday night the thermometer dropped nearly to zero, and it was a fearful night for grief-stricken survivors, many being left without a roof to cover their heads.

The cyclone originated in the vicinity of Oxfordville, 12 miles southwest of Janesville, travelled northeast several miles and then turned to the east. The greatest damage was done near the point of origin and at Milton.

The cyclone lasted only a few minutes. Although it occurred about the middle of the afternoon it was dark as night. The blinding downpour made the search for the dead and dying a terrible task.

Of the Schmidt family who lived three-quarters of a mile east of Hanover, there is only one survivor. He is Albert Schmidt, the boy. Physicians say he cannot recover. Alice Schmidt and her younger sister were in the house. They were blown across the road, the house being demolished over their heads. Their necks were broken and their skulls fractured, and it required two men to pull their half-buried bodies from the ground.

FREAK DAY IN CHICAGO
CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—One man prostrated by heat and another frozen to death within 19 hours, this is the impressive contrast provided by the most remarkable drop in temperature in the recorded history of the local weather station.

From 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when John Miley, a freight handler, was prostrated by heat while working in a car at the foot of South Water street, to 8 o'clock yesterday morning, the mercury fell 61 degrees.

In an alleyway in the rear of his home at 3005 West 79th street, Henry Green was found frozen to death yesterday morning. It is believed an icy footing and the high wind toppled him over and injured him and that the cold quickly did the rest.

Men walked the streets Saturday without vests and with business coats thrown open. They wore the heaviest winter wrappings yesterday and still suffered. The fall in temperature was 74.3 to 13 degrees.

TWO DEAD IN BUFFALO
BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The first blast of winter struck here yesterday, ushered in by a 68-mile-an-hour gale and a drop of 10 degrees in temperature. The storm trail was marked by shattered plate glass windows, a stranded lake freighter and a demoralized street car service. No fatalities occurred in the city but at Kennedy, Alfonzo Dewey and his wife, an old couple, blinded by the storm, drove in front of an Erie passenger train and were killed.

About 12 o'clock the wind tore down the transmission cables of the Niagara Falls Power company. The lines on both sides of the river were prostrated, cutting off all source of power for street car service here.

Between 12:30 and 3 o'clock traffic was at a standstill. The tie-up occurred when travelling was difficult if not dangerous, and most of the passengers stuck to the shelter of the cars until traffic was resumed.

The 550-foot freighter J. Q. Riddle of Cleveland was torn from her moorings back of the breakwater and swept toward the beach at the foot of Michigan street. When the lines parted a watchman on board opened her water gates and she settled on sandy water, 150 feet from shore. Her position is not considered dangerous.

STORM KILLS TWO
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 12.—Two were killed and several seriously injured by a storm which struck Easton, Ill., Saturday night, tearing away telegraph and telephone wires and leaving the city isolated until last night. The dead: Infant child of Mr. and Mrs. James Prater; body found 100 yards from the home, which was demolished. Mrs. Allie Henninger, 75 years old, died of fright when her home collapsed. The Prater home was the only one in the town proper which was much damaged. The baby was buried against a tree and killed. All the other members of the family were injured.

MR. M. J. SHARKEY
Hears of the Marriage of His Two Brothers

An Irish paper from Strokestown Co. Roscommon, Ireland, gives an account of the marriage on the same day of the two brothers of Mr. M. J. Sharkey, the well known insurance agent of this city. The brothers, John J. and Thomas J. are in business under the firm name of Sharkey Bros. The former was united in marriage to Miss Josephine O'Beirne and the latter to Miss Nora O'Connor. The account of the first marriage is as follows and the second was quite similar:

SHARKEY-O'BEIRNE
On October 10th at Pro-Cathedral, Marlborough street, with nuptial mass by the Rev. Timothy Sharkey, C. C. Boyle, (cousin of both bridegroom and bride), assisted by the Rev. B. Kelly, B. D., C. C. Strokestown, the Rev. P. J. Scott, C. C. Roxbury, and the Rev. M. J. O'Beirne, C. C. Summerville, C. C. Meath, (cousins of the bride) John J. (of Sharkey Bros., Church street, Strokestown, second son of the late Thomas Sharkey, Drinnane, to Josephine, third daughter of the late Patrick O'Beirne, of Carrow, Elphin.

DR. GUY HOLBROOK
Seized With Illness at His Office Today

Dr. Guy Holbrook, the well known physician, was seized with illness in Central street, this morning. He was removed to his home where he was attended by Dr. R. E. Bell. Until Dr. Bell's arrival it was thought he had been the victim of a shock but happily such was not the case and it is expected that he will be about again within a few days.

SURPRISE PARTY
A very agreeable surprise party was held at the home of Mrs. Ringwood, Friday evening, when her daughter, Miss Anna, was surprised by a large number of friends who presented her a beautiful gold locket and chain. The presentation speech was made by Master Arthur Broderick. Although Miss Ringwood was very much surprised, she responded fittingly. A musical program was given during the evening by Miss Ringwood, Miss Hunter, Mary Considine, Susan Carrig, and Master Paul Harris. The Gorham Street orchestra rendered selections: Gerald O'Connor, Arthur Broderick, Daniel Sullivan and Joseph Murphy played and sang all the popular songs. Games were played until a very late hour when the crowd dispersed with best wishes to Miss Anna. Miss Helen Brady and Miss Grace Mahan were in charge of the affair.

FOUR LIVES WERE LOST

When Schooner Witch Hazel Struck Rock at New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 12.—Four men lost their lives and two others reached shore with difficulty when the schooner Witch Hazel, heading her way up Long Island sound in the face of the heavy storm last night, struck hard on the west breakwater at the entrance to New Haven harbor and went down. Captain Britt of the schooner and three of his crew perished. The two members of the crew saved are Joseph Miller and Benjamin Miller of St. John, N. B. They are being cared for at the Seamen's Hotel in this city. The Witch Hazel was laden with 375 tons of coal.

The Witch Hazel, which loaded at Port Reading, was towed through New York harbor and passed City island with the wind blowing heavily. When in Long Island sound the southwest gale had lashed the sea into a mass of high waves. Captain Britt had to run before the wind and decided to try and make New Haven harbor for shelter. Just before dark the breakwater lights here were sighted. Two hours later the schooner brought up suddenly on southwest breakwater. Huge combers came aboard and in a minute Captain Britt and three others were washed overboard while two others taken off several hours later. The drowned: CAPTAIN BRITT, Calais, Me. ANDREW MILLER, steward, Jorgensen Mines, N. S. OLD JOHNSON, mate, Norway. THOMAS MASTEN, seaman, St. John, N. B. The men rescued also came from Jorgensen Mines, N. S. They agreed today that the schooner struck so unexpectedly that there was little time to do anything but save themselves. They sprang for the rigging and as they clambered into it they saw the captain and the three others washed overboard. One of the men appeared for a moment on the breakwater and then disappeared. The fore and after deckhouse and jibboom were carried away. The Millers several hours later were taken off by the British schooner Gertrude, bound from Perth Amboy for St. John, N. B., which put in here. The Witch Hazel lies in 18 feet of water and it is thought may be salvaged.

SAILS BLOWN AWAY

Schooner Was Caught in
Heavy Gale

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The cold wave that chased into the Atlantic some of the balmy Indian summer weather New York ever has enjoyed tightened its grip today and sent the mercury down to 24 degrees. This minimum recorded at eight o'clock this morning meant a fall of 44 degrees since one o'clock yesterday afternoon. The gale on which the frigid weather rode into town continued today at 33 miles an hour. Few small boats ventured on the sea outside the harbor. Reports of marine disasters are expected today. The steamer Vigilance reported at quarantine this morning that on her way in she had passed the schooner Henry Withington with her sails blown away anchored about ten miles southeast by south of Scotland lightship.

The high winds have crippled wire service and the telegraph lines to the west are doing business under great difficulty.

SAILORS SCARCE

Hard to Get Crews for
Vessels

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 13.—A great scarcity of sailors almost unprecedented and which from a shipping standpoint is a serious situation now confronts the vessel owners and boarding masters of this port.

Much difficulty is found in getting a sufficient number of men together to make up crews for vessels ready for sea and some schooners have been held for days recently waiting for a crew. Shipping people are at a loss to account for this shortage of sailors. The pay has increased from $12 a month to $25 and cooks obtain even higher wages.

THE ARCHBISHOP

SENDS HIS LOVE TO PEOPLE OF LOWELL

"It was one of the grandest ovations I ever witnessed," said Mayor Meehan, speaking of the ovation given Cardinal O'Connell when he left for Rome on Saturday. Mayor Meehan was one of many who went from Lowell to see the cardinal off and the cardinal gave him a message for the people of Lowell. He first thanked Mayor Meehan for his message of appreciation to His Holiness, the pope. "Give my love," he said, "to all the people of Lowell, my native city, and thank them for the kindly interest that they have made manifest from time to time."

THE LOWELL SUN

JOHN H. HARRINGTON, Proprietor

SUN BUILDING, MERRIMACK SQUARE, LOWELL, MASS.

Member of the Associated Press

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1910 was

15,976

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 2, 1911. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

Cambridge and Chelsea had special reasons for rejecting the commission form of government. Chelsea had been governed by a board of control, and in Cambridge the charter question was decided solely on party lines. The democrats are in the ascendant and they refused to relinquish their hold. The city government of Cambridge does not call for radical measures.

If the German Chancellor had delivered his war-like speech in London instead of in Berlin, he could not have got a more prompt reply than given him by Premier Asquith. The British premier, too, drove back the sub-rattling utterance of the German chancellor who was trying to make the best of the humiliating agreement which he was forced to make with France in the Moroccan affair.

Edward F. McSweeney of Boston in an address on the causes of tuberculosis says one of the most prolific is individual wrong-doing and greed—the greed that causes house owners and others to crowd the poor so that from unsanitary quarters and poor food the disease finds easy victims. This is true of other cities as well as Boston and perhaps of mill cities to a greater extent than most others.

THE GOVERNOR'S FUTURE

The great victory won by Governor Foss has already caused him to be mentioned in connection with the presidency. We do not want to lose him but if he attracts the presidential lightning nobody will say nay. Governor Woodrow Wilson, Clark and Harmon seem to have the democratic field to themselves as candidates for the presidency. There may be others when the time comes, but Governor Foss had better keep on and run for a third term next year, following the precedent of Governor Russell.

THE ANTI-PRESS PROPAGANDA

The propaganda whose special business it is to persuade the masses that the newspapers do not tell the truth on any question is one of the worst enemies of the plain people. From every street corner during a campaign you can hear men appeal to the people for sympathy and support on the ground that they are opposed by the press or that the press will not publish what they say. It is time something were done to put a stop to these itinerant shouters who assail public men in the vilest terms, and all this ostensibly to help some cause or the candidacy of some politician. Unless a newspaper deals out anarchy, profanity and libel it cannot report what these shouters have to say. Yet these men have a grievance against the press because they are not reported. The press is, therefore, "not reliable" and the people are asked to believe that it is also untruthful and on such authority. When the people learn to pay more attention to the advice of the press and less to that of the peripatetic orators they will find themselves more generally right than they have been in the past.

THE VOTER'S DUTY AND RESPONSIBILITY

The citizens of Lowell have before them the task of employing five men to conduct the business of the municipality under the new charter. The voter should now realize as never before the responsibility placed upon his shoulders in having a direct share in the selection of these men. Every citizen in this case should regard himself as an employer. He is a stockholder, so to speak, in the municipal corporation and should exercise as good judgment in selecting the men to serve the city as if he were employing them to take charge of business for himself. That is the rule that should guide every voter at the polls in the primary as well as in the final elections.

The old custom of voting for any nincompoop who buttonholes you on the street should be dropped. It has done more to ruin the city than any other mistake made by the voters. But for that custom we might have overcome the defects in the old charter but as soon as the voters began to support only the candidates who made a business of politics and who spent months visiting the voters at their homes, then good government became impossible.

Some voters will say that the new charter was put through by a clique as a means of capturing the offices. It was put through because under the old charter the voters elected to the city council some men who were a disgrace to themselves, to the city and especially to the men who elected them. There is no need to mention names but voters in their sober senses made a farce of our city government by sending men to the city council whom they would not entrust with a peanut stand if the business were their own.

Is there a sane man in Lowell who can deny this statement? There is where the movement for a new charter originated—in the utter disregard of common decency and practical results shown by the citizens in some of the wards in selecting men for the city council.

Let us hope that the voters who have been guilty of this political malfeasance will see their duty clear in the present case and do their part with one end in view and that the choice of the very best men possible for every office to be filled under the new charter.

Let no voter throw away his vote upon a weak or worthless candidate. If any joke candidate gets fifty or a hundred votes, the fact will be clear that just so many men vested with the franchise and given a heavy responsibility under the new charter have thrown it all to the winds and voted for a man whose election would be anything but a joke.

Talk about malfeasance in office. What can be expected if the voters deliberately commit the same crime against the city by supporting unfit men, joke candidates or men whose only claim to support is that they have asked for votes while the other fellow who has a business to attend to did not get around to solicit their votes.

If you are under an obligation to pay a certain sum of money for value received, do you think you would be justified in handing it over to a loafer who comes to your door asking for relief? Be just before you are generous. Give your vote to the man who from experience, honesty and ability deserves rather than to the unfit man who comes to solicit your support. By so doing you will discharge your duty to the city, not otherwise.

SEEN AND HEARD

Both Fred Shireman, chief clerk and "Jud" Carter, night clerk, at a Louisville hotel, are becoming bald-headed, and both have until recently been quite proud of the fact.

According to a friend, it took a colored bellboy at the hotel to take the conceit out of them a few days ago. A traveling man, who had been stopping at the hotel for some time, pulled up at the desk the other day.

To gaze at both over the rim of his gold spectacles for a minute. "Gracious goodness," he said, "you fellows will soon be combing your hair with a towel. What's the trouble?"

"Exclusive brain work," said Shireman. "Isn't that right, Carter?"

"Correct," corroborated Carter. "Only thinking men become bald-headed." Then he turned and winked at a negro bellhop. "Fact, isn't it, Sam?" he said.

The negro boy grinned. "Well, now boss," he said, "I don't know for sooth 'bout dat. My ole dad he always say dat an empty balm don't need no cov'ah."

LOVE

What is it? This golden sunbeam That shineth so bright and glad, And the faces from which it has faded, Looketh so dread and sad.

And those who are plaid and haggard By worry and strife and pain, Need but this ray of beauty To make them fair again.

What is it? This heaven-sent blessing, This inward light from above, This Eden of rest and beauty, Whose portals we call love.

What is it? This priceless jewel, That never was bought for gold; And only reverently given, Silently, soul to soul.

That poets have tried to sing of, But their words could not reach its depth, And only played on the heart-strings, With their music's fleeting breath.

What is it? This light whose meaning Only the soul may know; That bringeth wings to the weary, And the blessing of joy or woe.

Constant employment and entertainment are essential to the child's well-being. These can be made both entertaining and instructive in a perfectly natural way. A normal child should be doing something all the time; and in this way he can be taught that

"Not a minute shall you despise, Use it in some strong way; Doing your best through each hour That flies, Gives life a noble day."

The more the parent makes himself the companion of the child the better the opportunity for inculcating in him the principles he should adhere to through life. This should be done through love—with "reproof on the lips but a smile in the eye."

We often hear the expression, "A home where love is." There is no real home where love is not. It was such a home that Byron had in mind when he wrote:

"Tis sweet to hear the watchdog's honest bark, Buy deep-mouthed welcome as we draw near home; 'Tis sweet to know there is an eye will mark Our coming, and look brighter when we come."

We do not feel that we can accentuate the fact too strongly that it is through the influence of the home and the precept and example of parents that good citizenship comes. And thus it is seen that the home is the bulwark of the nation.

A professor in the University of Chicago told his pupils that he should consider them educated in the best sense of the word when they could say yes to every one of the questions that he should put to them. Here are the questions:

Has education given you sympathy with all good causes and made you espouse them? Have you learned how to make friends and keep them? Do you know what it is to be a friend to yourself?

Can you look an honest man or a pure woman in the eye? Do you see anything to love in a little child? Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?

Can you be high-minded and happy in the meaner drudgeries of life? Do you think washing dishes and hoeing corn just as estimable with high thinking as piano-playing or golf?

Are you good for anything to yourself? Can you be happy alone? Can you look out on the world and see anything except dollars and cents? Can you look into a mud puddle by the wayside and see a clear sky? Can you see anything in the puddle but mud? Can you look into the sky at night and see beyond the stars? Can your soul claim relationship with the Creator?—Kansas City Star.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A writer in The Tablet says: It was my privilege to spend three days among Monte Cassino's communities, and the charm of these three days will never fade from memory. Up there above the clouds one is aloof indeed from the workaday world, aloof from all its pettiness, yet surrounded by its nobler toll, and with its history epitomized around one. The monastery looks down upon the Campagna. From the balcony of the guest chambers your gaze swoops diagonally down to the snail-like plain. Over against you are snow-capped ranges and clear-cut peaks at whose bases rock-defiles show the way to Naples and sometimes give blue glimpses of the Gulf of Gaeta. The winding poplar planted Bapido brings life to the treading plain, and across the gradually focused stretches of that wide champagne goes the white ribbon of the Appian Way.

The present church was built as late as 1727, and Luca Giordano's frescoes tell the story of the saint's miracles, while other pictures commemorate some of the hardest trials through which his followers passed. One of these depicts the eruption of a band of fierce barbarians, a wave of the tides of destruction with which the Goths deluged Italy. The miscreants have penetrated to the high altar, where the aged Abbot is celebrating mass. One of them has seized the chalice in his left hand and with uplifted sword is in the act of striking him dead, as thinking only of saving the sacred host the old man stoops to recover it from the steps of the altar. There is a whimsical touch in one of Giordano's frescoes above the doorway, one with a particular appeal to animal lovers. The scene is in the interior of a church, with a group of ecclesiastics and nobles on either side of the chancel. A miraculous apparition is just occurring overhead, which we see but which has not yet dawned upon the eyes of the faithful. Only a little spaniel, his instinct causing him to "tumble to it" at once, is looking upward with an expression that promises a bark of rapturous excitement.

There is a noble court leading to the main entrance of the church, adorned with statues of Saint Benedict and his sister, Saint Scholastica. From the loggia is obtained a magnificent view of plains and mountains, and, as the eye travels down the slope of the hill on which the monastery is built, it marks how, wherever there is a foothold and sufficient shelter from the wind, cultivation, as if for very life, is in progress. I went for a ramble with some of the brethren down a bit of the hillside and up again to a spur upon which in ancient days there stood a temple to Venus and which it is intended shall one day be crowned with a chapel to Our Lady.

Thomas Hardy, who has made such a generous distribution of his manuscripts, once remarked: "When I read the only one of my novels that will be read is 'Jude the Obscure.'" But it is safe to assume that posterity will not be so limited in its appreciation of the great novelist. For his rural comedy alone the Hardy series will take its place among the classics. In this connection a friend once asked him how he managed to portray the English country girl so faithfully. "You might almost be a country girl yourself," said the inquirer. "When I was a young man," Mr. Hardy replied, "I used to write love letters for the village girls to the soldier sweethearts in India. That naturally gave me a good insight into their nature and characteristics."

The site of Mr. Hardy's home at Dorchester, built from his own designs, was secured to him by the generosity of the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales. Mr. Hardy's request, cropping up, his Royal Highness said, "We must do all we can to encourage British authors. The land has numerous historic associations and many Roman relics from time to time have been unearthed in or near the pretty garden."

Thackeray's playful habit of wrapping rhymes in pie is happily illustrated in the letter below, which was written to his friend Hole:

"Did I ever write and comply with your desire to have a page of autobiography? You're welcome to a quire. Tell your friend the lady I have no pleasure higher than in writing pretty poetry and striking of the lyre in compliment to a gentleman whom benevolence did inspire to send me partridges and pheasants killed with shot or wire (but whatever the way of Apologies of the revival of "What Every Woman Knows," Mr. Barrie, in one of his few expansive moments, told Mr. Frohman that many of the sayings and doings of the heroine, Maggie Wylie, were directly inspired by his own mother. Thus when Maggie objects to her brother sitting in the best chair (which she covers up carefully before retiring), Barrie was (thinking of his mother's saying, "I wouldn't sit in the fine chair, James," Maggie produces her knitting on all occasions, just as her prototype "had her stockings all ways on the wires for odd moments."

The most notable instance of a novel dealing with a country which the author had never seen was Short-house's "John Inglesant."

The second volume of that remarkable romance deals in the most detailed way with Italian manners and Italian scenery. Many of the descriptions—that of Umbria at night, for instance, and the scene in the pavilion in the forest—are charged with the very atmosphere of Italy, and Florence during the plague lives horribly before our eyes. Yet Joseph Henry Short-house had never been in Italy. Bathurst and the genius for assimilation evolved it all in a quiet house at Edgemoor.

Maurice Maeterlinck began his literary career with three apparent failures. His first literary endeavor was to found a review, La Pleiade, which soon ceased to appear. His second was the publication of a volume of poems, "Sonnets chaudes," which fell stillborn from the press. Then came his play, "La Princesse Malone." It was printed by hand—the author's own hands in fact—and the edition consisted of exactly twenty-five copies, which were given away. For a year it attracted no attention.

Then, however, one of the twenty-five copies fell into the hands of M. Octave Mirbeau. He wrote a resounding article about it in the Figaro and the author, like Byron, woke up and found himself famous.

EDWARD J. COOKIN

Driver of Police Auto Passed Away

The many friends of Edward J. Cookin, the well-known chauffeur of the police department automobile, will be deeply pained to learn of his death which occurred Saturday night at his home, 609 Andover street after an illness of only one week, up to which time he was the picture of health. Bright's disease was the cause of death. The deceased would have been 28 years of age next Wednesday. He was educated at the Immaculate Conception school and at Ottawa University. After finishing his studies he entered the employ of his father, Michael P. Cookin, a well known furniture dealer in Market street and on January 2 of this year he entered the employ of the police department as chauffeur on the new automobile. Of sunny disposition, kindly and amiable at all times he made many friends in and out of the police department and his sudden death will be mourned by a wide circle of friends. He is survived by his wife, Della, his father, Michael P., one sister, Miss Elizabeth and three brothers, James N., Frank W. and George A. Cookin.

THROUGH THE MILL

BOOK WRITTEN BY MILL WORKER OF NEW BEDFORD

"Through the Mill," an autobiography of the first twenty years of the life of Mr. Al Priddy, is an interesting account of his eight years of work in the cotton mills of New Bedford. Compressed into a few lines the trend of the narrative follows:

Owing to the drinking habits of his foster parents Al Priddy was forced to begin work in a mill when eleven years old. Compelled to become a plodding millworker at a time when he should have been a romping schoolboy, the lad's education was curtailed, his body's natural growth was stunted and even his moral principles were assailed. Under these handicaps, the boy, longing for an education, attempted to study at night, but because of his enfeebled brain, these attempts were practically fruitless.

To the debasing effect of strong drink on the characters of parents Mr. Priddy principally attributes the resultant evil of child labor. He pleads to parents, to manufacturers and to lawmakers in behalf of those children, so many whose lives have, through this evil of child labor, been blighted. They are the unprotected victims of social injustice.

While the book is one written with a purpose, yet, by reason of its life-like characters and its vivid portrayal of the mill worker's day-by-day life, together with its easy and entertaining style, the volume will be interesting to all who like to enter into the joys and sorrows of the plain people.

Altogether, "Through the Mill" impressed the reader again with the adage that "Truth is stranger than fiction."

afternoon with a large attendance. President William Ballinger was in the chair. Secretary Arthur Hillier read his annual report showing the club to be in a sound financial condition.

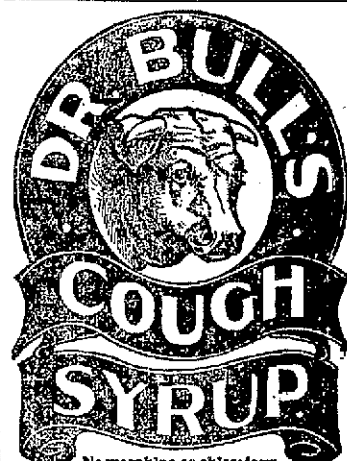

A slight change was made in the constitution and bylaws, by which the fiscal year will begin on January 1st and end December 31st of every year, instead of as at present, without, however, changing the time to elect a captain and team committee. These will be elected at a special meeting to be held in March, just before the playing season opens.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, William Ballinger, (re-elected); vice president, Walter Metcalf; secretary, Frank Hollenworth; treasurer, Fred Ballinger; executive committee, James McEnaney, J. Barber, J. Cookson, F. Hainsworth, G. Robbins and J. Whitworth.

An interesting discussion of the future of cricket in this country and the sentiment favored of branching out into other lines of sport with the object of a general athletic club with football and basketball among the features took place.

After the meeting a chicken pie supper was enjoyed and it was served by the wives of several of the members. A short entertainment followed in which the following took part: Mrs. Herbert Hadley, Miss Lottie Vinal and John Tabrah, the duties of accompanist being shared by Herbert Waterhouse and Rylah Firth of Lowell Representative Edward Fisher was also present and interpreted his remarks with the relation of many reminiscences. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour and the strains of the Vesper orchestra, brought a pleasant afternoon and evening to a close.

SCORED A VICTORY BATTLE WITH FLAMES

Lowell High Defeated the Boston Arlington Firemen Were Obligated to Call for Aid College High Eleven

The undefeated Lowell High school football team scored another victory Saturday afternoon, defeating the fast Boston College high eleven by a score of 11 to 6. It was one of the best games of the season and was a hard fought contest from the blast of the whistle at the beginning of the first period until the game was called. Despite the fact that the team from the Hub was defeated it has the honor of being the only team to score on the foot eleven this season.

By blocking of a punt behind the Lowell line and recovering the ball, Boston High made a touchdown and subsequently a goal was kicked. Boston's score was made in the first period and it looked as though the Lowell team was going to suffer its first defeat, but the locals played a good, snappy and consistent game.

Inasmuch as the officials of the game overlooked roughness now and then during the first period, the players took practically every opportunity to mix it up when there was any possible chance of gaining an advantage by rough tactics.

Fallon, the right halfback for the visitors, was the star performer of the game. He was a veritable tower of strength and was speedy on both offense and defense. Barron, tackle, and King, guard, also played a good game.

Leggat, Cawley and Bowers on Lowell's back line did excellent work and Carter at end and Edgar in the line, contributed materially to the playing which resulted in victory.

Boston did its scoring in the first period. The ball was in Lowell's territory. Boston failed to gain and called for a punt. The ball went wild and Lowell recovered. On the first try, Cawley fumbled the ball and Boston recovered. Lowell held for downs at the referee's aid to attention for that. They punted and Leggat fumbled the punt and it rolled to the two-yard line before he could get into it. Cawley dropped behind the line for a punt that was blocked for touchdown for Boston.

After a series of forward passes in the second period, Cawley and Bailey added 8 yards each and Leggat made 76 more. The ball was on the 2 yards mark and Cawley carried it over, but Carter failed to kick the goal.

In the third period Lowell received the kickoff. Cawley ran it back twenty yards. He then made eight yards at tackle and Leggat four at end. They could not gain on the next two tries, and punted. Boston made two small gains and returned the punt. Cawley made four yards and then Leggat tore off one of his famous runs around the end for 40 yards. Cawley added 10, Leggat made five more. Leggat went to Carter nested eight, and then Leggat went by the left tackle 15 yards for the second score. Carter kicked the goal.

Neither side scored in the fourth period. The lineup and summary:

ARLINGTON, Nov. 13.—Four families were driven from their homes by a bad blaze in the apartment house 14 and 16 Belknap street early yesterday afternoon. The damage is estimated at $7000. Aid was called from Somerville and the firemen had a hard struggle to keep the flames from spreading. Many of the neighbors prepared to vacate their houses.

The house was 2 1/2 stories high, the upper part being a blind attic. At No. 12 were the families of Albert Nangle on the first floor and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trundy and family occupied the upper floor. In No. 16 were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilson on the lower floor and Murdoch McLeod and family in the upper suite.

Chief Engineer Walter Pierce of the Fire department stated that a gas stove on the upper floor started the blaze. Neighbors noticed flames coming through the upper story of the house. Patrick F. Brosnan, who lives near by, ran to box 16 on Massachusetts avenue near Tufts street and sent in the alarm.

Mr. and Mrs. Trundy heard the cries of the neighbors and noticed that the whole of their kitchen and back of the house was in roaring flames. Mrs. Trundy had barely time to catch up her baby and rush upstairs. Mr. Trundy stayed a little longer in an effort to save some of his property. He was somewhat overcome by smoke and was carried from the house by Bud Hinch, a neighbor, who attempted to check the flames and cut his right hand severely.

Neighbors Save Goods. Many of the neighbors rushed into the two entrances and were able to save some of the furniture on the lower floor, but they were soon forced to abandon their work because of the intense heat. When the firemen arrived they were handicapped by the lack of pressure of their engine and the high wind. For the first time since May 30, 1893, when the great Lechouses were burned, a second alarm was sounded, and this brought Engine 6, in charge of Lieut. Gilman, from Somerville. It was the presence of the engine that saved a conflagration.

Other Houses Threatened. The wind carried large brands of fire toward the surrounding houses, the section being thickly settled, and this caused great anxiety among the residents, many of whom had packed up their belongings and were ready to vacate. Alarms were placed on the roofs with extinguishers. The house occupied by Mrs. Laura Bond and John Taylor at 16 and 18 Linwood street caught fire, but the blaze was soon put out. The house at 18 and 20 Belknap street stands about 15 feet from the house that was burned, and this house was saved by the hardest kind of work on the part of the firemen, who kept water streaming down the side, making a water blanket.

The roof caught several times, but these fires were extinguished with but little damage. The occupants of this house suffered from smoke and the occupants, Fred Ross, Robert Walshaw, Edward Kelly and Willie Askor, packed up ready to move out at moment's notice.

Many Narrow Escapes. That there were no accidents was remarkable. Falling walls and chimneys narrowly missed the firemen and a hot air explosion in the rear of the house scattered debris right and left, nearly striking a number of men. Frank Russell of Hose 3, had a narrow escape. He was on a ladder and a chimney fell from the building and he received a bad shaking up, but returned to his work.

Mr. and Mrs. Trundy lost everything they owned, including considerable money, which was in a trunk and taken from the bank yesterday for current expenses. They carried no insurance. Mr. Trundy says his loss will be about $1500.

Mr. Nangle, who lived under the Trundy family, stated that his property was worth about $1000 and there was some insurance. Veteran Losses All. Murdoch McLeod, who is a Civil War veteran, lost almost all of his belongings. He and his family lived in the upper suite opposite the Trundy family and they did not have time to save anything. His loss is about $600.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilson are bride and groom and moved into the house three days ago. They had no insurance, and with the help of volunteers almost all of their furniture was taken out. Some articles and dishes being left, and Mr. Wilson said his loss was about $100.

The firemen battled for three hours before they had the blaze under control. The house is owned by Daniel L. Tappan and he stated that the house was worth about $6000 and that it was insured.

ST. ANNE'S MISSION Will Observe 25th Anniversary Tomorrow

The 25th anniversary of the establishment of St. Anne's Episcopal mission at North Billerica will take place tomorrow but there will be no formal observance. Recently the members observed the 21st anniversary of the consecration of the mission, the late Rt. Rev. Henry Paddock, D. D., then bishop of the diocese, officiating.

St. Anne's Mission was organized Nov. 14, 1886, in Union hall, North Billerica. Rev. Dr. A. St. John Chamberlain, rector of St. Anne's Episcopal church, Lowell, acted as chairman of the meeting, which was held after the service at 3:30 p. m.

The first Episcopal service was held in the North Billerica church, May 6, 1886. Aug. 6, 1886, St. Anne's Guild for Men was formed. John Gott, James Sutcliffe and Robert Paulding were the organizers. Aug. 10, 1886, St. Elizabeth's Guild was formed with Mrs. A. J. Gott as president, Mrs. M. E. Sutcliffe vice president, Miss Elizabeth Morawitz secretary and treasurer.

DOVER, N. H., Nov. 13.—While passing the People's market, Owen Coogan, proprietor, on Central square, at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, Patrolmen Chesley and Pody heard a noise in the rear. Pody stood outside while Chesley climbed through a rear window which was found up. This window opened into the icebox.

There he found William R. Curtis, proprietor of a restaurant on the second floor of the same block, endeavoring to get through a small window leading from the icebox into the refrigerator.

Curtis was equipped with a flashlight and a screw driver. To Chesley's questions Curtis replied that he had heard burglars in the market and went there to drive them out. He was taken to the police station and locked up.

Curtis is the oldest restaurant keeper in the city. He is about 60 years old and has run his restaurant on Central square the past 12 years. Curtis came here from Boston in 1887. Several years ago he served as a special policeman.

The police say that Curtis descended by a rope from his restaurant to the roof of the one-story addition containing the icebox and refrigerator of the market.

From the roof he pried open the door to the icebox, which is so high from the ground that Patrolman Chesley had to get a ladder to reach it. His attempt to get through the window into the refrigerator caused the noise which resulted in his arrest.

ST. ANNE'S MISSION

Will Observe 25th Anniversary

Tomorrow

The 25th anniversary of the establishment of St. Anne's Episcopal mission at North Billerica will take place tomorrow but there will be no formal observance. Recently the members observed the 21st anniversary of the consecration of the mission, the late

Rt. Rev. Henry Paddock, D. D., then bishop of the diocese, officiating.

St. Anne's Mission was organized

Nov. 14, 1886, in Union hall, North

Billerica. Rev. Dr. A. St. John Chamberlain, rector of St. Anne's Episcopal church, Lowell, acted as chairman of the meeting, which was held after the service at 3:30 p. m.

The first Episcopal service was held in the North Billerica church,

May 6, 1886. Aug. 6, 1886, St. Anne's

Guild for Men was formed. John Gott,

James Sutcliffe and Robert Paulding were the organizers. Aug. 10, 1886,

St. Elizabeth's Guild was formed with

Mrs. A. J. Gott as president, Mrs. M. E.

Sutcliffe vice president, Miss Elizabeth

Morawitz secretary and treasurer.

At the organization of the mission

Robert Delmedigo was elected warden,

James Sutcliffe, treasurer, Joseph

Brown clerk. Members of the mission celebrated a worship in Union hall from

Nov. 14, 1886, to June 26, 1890. Oct. 17,

1888, half an acre of land was purchased from S. D. Metcalf at Tremble

Cove road, not far from Fordway bridge over Concord river.

May 10, 1890, Rev. Dr. Chamberlain

cut the first sod on the land and May 21,

1890, the corner stone was laid. The church was opened July 14, 1890. Rev.

H. G. Woods of St. John's church, Winthrop, was architect, and a Boston contractor erected the mission building.

The church was consecrated Sept. 18, 1890.

The work which led to the organization of the mission was under the supervision of the late Rev. John S. Beers and the late Rev. Dr. Edson, rector of St. Anne's church, Lowell, was a frequent visitor in Billerica homes during his rectorship.

Among the gifts to the mission was a handsome marble font, which has been inscribed as a loving memorial to Bishop Paddock.

Members of the mission acknowledged the generosity of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Chamberlain. In addition to the mission there has been a house erected

ADrift ON A BARGE

Fourteen Men Were Found in a Very Perilous Position

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Fourteen men who were reported adrift on a rocking barge off Fire Island last night were still clinging to their perilous position at an early hour today. A wireless despatch was received here at two o'clock this morning from the steamship Howard which discovered the drifting barge late yesterday, saying that the Howard was still standing by, awaiting a hull in the storm to effect a rescue.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

So great has been the demand for tickets for the engagement here at the Opera House on Thursday, Dec. 5th of Maude Adams in Rosland's poetic drama "Chatterbox" that the management has decided to accept mail orders for this engagement commencing today. Orders must be accompanied by remittance and will be filled in the order received and will be delivered Nov. 27th. The box office sale will open Nov. 28th.

"THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER"

"The Chocolate Soldier" which will make a bid for favor in this city at the Opera House on Thursday, Nov. 16th cannot be compared to other musical productions, because its individuality sets it far apart and above the musical atrocities with which theatregoers have in the past been treated. Its story, drawn from Shaw's "Arms and the Man" is in itself a classic of charming, wholesome and penetrating comedy. The wild and merry exploits of "The Chocolate Soldier" among the susceptible women of Bulgaria and the peacekeepers of the Bulgarian army, the way in which he ridicules their vanities and puts to shame their follies form a libretto that will exhilarate tired minds and cure the most confirmed hypochondriac.

But the supreme strength of the opera lies in the music of Oscar Straus, which illumines and interprets every phase of the story and leaves its audience dizzy with astonishment at the versatility and the beauty of its melodies. With admirable adroitness Straus has caught the undercurrent of ridicule that flows through every scene even the most serious, and embodied it in telling and unforgettable musical phrase. Moreover, the music and the story are wedded to each other and lyric rises out of the situation to which it belongs, and the songs are not interlarded wholly foreign to the plot, but as indispensable portions of the story as the dialogue itself.

GERTRUDE RENNYSON

Since Gertrude Rennyson sang in the high street church in Lowell she has become not only one of America's best known singers but also one of the greatest Wagnerian singers of the world. The distinction to be invited to sing at Bayreuth, the Temple of Wagner's Opera, falls only to the few select ones and it is especially rare that the honor is conferred to anyone who is not German. Nordica had this honor conferred upon her when she was in the zenith of her career and Gertrude Rennyson was the first American to sing the part of Elsa in Lohengrin since Nordica. This was in 1909 and the wonderful success this American artist had on that occasion put her at once in the front rank of Wagnerian singers. This past summer Miss Rennyson and Schumann-Helink were two Americans who were the great favorites at Bayreuth. One might add that while the artist is invited to sing at Bayreuth they nevertheless receive munificent fees even from an American point of view. Miss Rennyson is a great favorite at Villa Wahnfried, Casima Wagner's home at Bayreuth and this summer has been repeatedly entertained there. She is a personal friend of Siegfried Wagner who gave her exclusively permission to sing the great finale of the 2d act of his opera "Baudisch" making her a present of the orchestration. Miss Rennyson will sing this several times this season as she is to appear with most of the leading orchestras.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

"A Knight for a Night," and uproariously funny comedy by Henry Rousseau, author of "Naughty Rebecca" and even funnier than the latter, will be this week's attraction at the Hathaway theatre and the Donald Meek stock company will be welcomed back into comedy again. The play centres around a famous actor-manager, one Junius Cassius Bragg, who presents a Roman tragedy written by a college professor in the latter's home town. A parrot which the actor-manager has borrowed to give realism to a forest scene makes a funny break during one of the intensely dramatic situations in the tragedy and puts the show out of commission and with it the actor-manager. Donald Meek will play the part of the Thespian and may be depended upon to make good the part. A special feature of this play will be the musical numbers contributed by Mr. Walsh and Miss Lucille Spinyee of the company. Mr. Walsh is well known as a singer, having first appeared in public as such in this, his home city, and afterward appearing with great success in musical comedy. Miss Spinyee is a talented musician and will accompany Mr. Walsh on the piano, the musical numbers being incidental to the play. Special scenery and settings have been prepared for "A Knight for a Night," and an elaborate production is assured. "Today is chocolate matinee day and each lady holding a paid reserved seat for the afternoon performance will receive a box of chocolates. Seats for any of this week's performances may be ordered in advance by telephone. "A Knight for a Night" includes the entire company.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

Have you noted the extraordinary bill offered at Keith's new theatre, this week, the largest and strongest vaudeville bill ever offered in Lowell. Heretofore no program has included seven vaudeville acts in addition to the pictures but beginning this week the bill will include an extra act making eight in all.

This week's bill is headed by one of the most captivating musical acts to be found on the stage. The Five Musical Novices, direct from Europe will appear in a reproduction of the scenes of Old Saville, that ancient centre of music, playing of beautiful music of that time and place and playing on the instruments that made Saville famous, notably the harp. This is no ordinary variety musical act but a real feast of music on instruments seldom heard and played by a quintet of artists. Les Montforts, the comedy bar artists will do a hair-raising act on the double bass including their original "Loop the Loop" feature. At midnight Burrow will be seen and heard in a delightful pantomime. The Belden-Chapelle company comes direct from Boston where it was the hit of last week's bill in a funny farce entitled, "Oh Doctor." Arthur Whitelaw, the Irish-American, pulls off a funny monologue. McCormick and Wallace from far-off Australia have the greatest ventriloquist act in vaudeville which includes a company of almost human figures, while Lewis and Doby will reel off some new parodies of their own concoction. Then there is Bert Melrose, the funniest of clowns, whose Melrose falls from the trapeze tables are the envy of all acrobats and break-neck performers. Don't miss this great bill and order your seats in advance by telephone 28 if you desire.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

A stronger list of attractions has not been seen at the Merrimack Square Theatre in months than the one scheduled for this week. Heading the list is John J. Quigley, the original newsboy tenor, who will be heard in some of his old time Irish song successes, as well as several of his latest offerings. His program includes "The Blind Boy," "When Sweet Marie Was Sweet Sixteen," Raymond Moore's favorite song, and Paul Dresser's latest composition, "Would I Were a Child Again." Mr. Quigley is well and favorably known here, having appeared in this city on many former occasions. He is still in good voice and his endeavors to please will no doubt be met with the same enthusiasm which stamped his former appearances here. He will appear daily at 3:45, 7:20 and 9:15 o'clock. Mr. Quigley made his biggest hit when associated with "Sunshine of Paradise Alley" company.

Another good offering is Nebraska Bill & Co. in a wild west entertainment that is said to be unequalled on the stage today. It includes a rare exhibition of rowdy stunts that is sure to hit the popular fancy of all.

Our Stock Company will present At E. Watt's great one-act play "By the Midnight Train," which has won such distinction all over the big circuit where it has been given. The piece is said to be cleverly put together and as interpreted by such clever people should certainly please.

Reed's Acrobatic Bull Terriers, the only act of its kind in the world, will be an added attraction. These animals are well trained and they give a most amusing entertainment.

The Weston Sisters are good entertainers and the photo-plays for the first three days will include "Auld Lang Syne," one of the latest and best motion pictures manufactured. During the last three days of the week Pathé's weekly review of world-wide events will be shown. Four views, which change daily, and which are provided exclusively in Lowell to the Merrimack Square Theatre management by the American Press association, is a new feature that adds to the attractiveness of the program. On Friday night the Merrimack Square Theatre Concert orchestra will feature selections from the opera "Norma."

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

This is "Children's Week" at the Academy of Music. The little ponies and educated dogs will surely be a treat for the youngsters, while Bessie the mule will keep the house in roars of laughter. The Troubadour Four with their character songs and funny songs will serve to amuse all ages and William Dick, the singing musician, cannot fail to please. A Rogers tea-noon will be presented to every lady purchasing a ten cent ticket for Monday matinee. Amateurs will appear on Wednesday.

PRES. WM. H. TAFT

Has Considerable Work Ahead of Him

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—With the return to Washington of President Taft yesterday morning the White House shutters have been taken down,

Are We Making, Madam, a Million-Dollar Mistake?

When we select our wheat—
When we wash, brush and scour it—
When we pass it through 20 grindings—
When we sift it 10 times through silk.
No doubt this is adding a million dollars per year to the necessary cost of our milling.
Is it our mistake?
Or is it your mistake when you fail to get it—when you fail to specify Gold Medal Flour?

Think what this means:

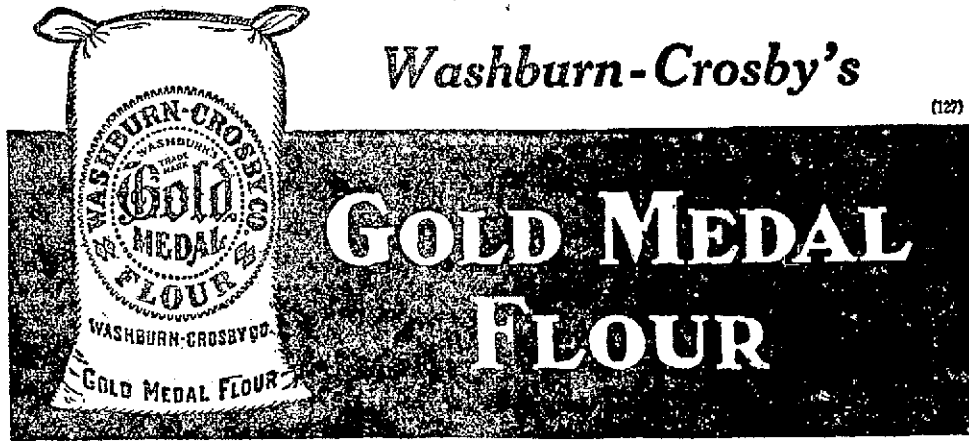

Gold Medal Flour now far outsells any other flour that's milled.

It feeds 24,000,000 folks daily.

Just because housewives—millions of them—have found that Gold Medal excels all other flours.

You'll not find it different.

Next time you order be sure you get

The official ink bottles have been refilled, new pens have been laid on the official desk and a stack of clean white paper laid ready for the official hand. The president will have use for the official ink, the official pens and the official paper. He has much work ahead of him. Three weeks and two days from now congress will again be in session and will be ready to receive the president's message.

That message is still in futurity. Mr. Taft may have thought a great deal about it while he was traveling the country, but he has not committed his thoughts to paper. Slogans will be kept busy from now on.

Mr. Taft came into Washington with the milkman. At a quarter to 7 in a dull, dreary November morning the president's special arrived at the Union station and at that early hour the president was up and ready to leave his car. A White House automobile was waiting for him, and with only the railway officials and the secret service men to welcome him the president walked down the platform accompanied by Secretary Hughes and Maj. Butt, and was quickly whisked away to the White House.

The president looks extremely well and betrays not the slightest indication of the tremendous strain to which he has been subjected by continuous travel for the last two months. Most men at the end of a 15,000 mile journey would have been reluctant to get up at daylight on a cold and rainy November morning. Not so the president. He wanted no extra sleep and apparently was quite prepared to start off on another cross continent jaunt and find a good deal of fun in it. The president expected to meet Mrs.

Taft and his daughter at the White House, but they had not arrived from Hot Springs, and, after a short interval he fell into the regular routine of the White House. He had breakfast alone, and after breakfast he went over a big pile of newspapers, which kept him busy until it was time to go to church. After church he went back to the White House for luncheon, and in the afternoon he saw some members of the cabinet and went for a walk.

The first meeting of the cabinet since the summer will be held on Tuesday, when all the members are expected to be present. Wednesday the president will go to Virginia to dedicate a monument. While he will make occasional trips from the city, he will remain pretty constantly in Washington until the end of the session of congress.

STOCK MARKET

WAS WEAK AT THE CLOSE THIS AFTERNOON

Selling Orders Were Distributed Again—Prices Sagged to Lowest of the Day—There Was Profit-Taking On a Large Scale—Other Features of the Trading

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Recessions from Saturday's closing prices were general among the active stocks when trading was begun today. Both Lehigh Valley and American Telephone declined a point, U. P., Reading and U. S. Steel common was relatively firm, falling back 3/4 on an opening sale of 2500 shares.

Reading brought 15 1/4 at 11 o'clock and Lehigh Valley advanced also. U. S. Steel and several railroads rallied to above last week's closing figures. Consolidated Gas was unusually active and improved two points. Rumors of forthcoming favorable government reports accompanied the movement in this stock. The market showed heavy losses again before 11 o'clock. American Smelting yielded a point and Reading fell back as much.

Interest in stocks lagged today and the market did not display the resiliency of last week during the morning. With prices generally lower in London, trading began with a heavy tone, owing to a continuation of profit-taking and lack of outside demand. The course of the market encouraged bear traders to renew their operations and they were able to bring about some recessions.

Prices advanced again before noon but the chief gains were limited to a handful of stocks such as the coalters, the Hill group and Consolidated Gas. Other stocks improved in a more moderate fashion and seemed to offer less resistance to the intermittent profit-taking and bear selling. Lehigh Valley established a new high level for the present movement touching 18 1/4. Reading rose about two points over last week's closing and Consolidated Gas over 3. Bonds were irregular.

Bull manipulation was suspended for a while and when profits were sought the whole list broke sharply. Lehigh Valley relinquished all but a small fraction of its forenoon advance. Reading dropped back to a half point under Saturday's close. U. S. Steel a point, and U. P. and S. P. 1/2. A few inactive stocks were lifted materially before the market weakened. U. S. Rubber rose 1/4, National Biscuit 1/4 and Pittsburgh Coal 1/2.

Speculation became very quiet on a fractional rally from the lowest. The recovery brought up most of the list to a little above Saturday's close. American Cotton Oil moved 2 1/2 to 48, which was higher than the ruling figures at the time the dividend was passed.

The market closed weak. Large selling orders were distributed again and prices sagged sharply to the lowest of the day. Profit-taking was on a large scale and there was some aggressive selling by the bear faction.

STEAMER RAN ASHORE

Little Hope for Fifty Passengers on Board

ASTORIA, Ore., Nov. 13.—The steamer Astoria, which ran ashore on Peacock Spit yesterday afternoon, is being driven by a southeast gale toward the rocks on Cape North Head. It is believed that the 50 persons aboard are doomed. A terrible sea is running. The steamer was in a worse position this morning than when darkness shut her off from the view of those on shore. A terrific southeast gale was blowing and slowly but surely she was creeping toward the rocks. The only hope for the 50 persons aboard was in the bravery of the government life-saving crews from the Cape Disappointment and Point Adams stations. These men were waiting for the vessel to drift close enough to shore so that lifelines might be fired over her.

The tugboats Tatoosh and Goliath left Astoria early today for the scene but the captains had little hope that they would be able to get close enough to shore that lifelines might be fired over her.

The tugboats Tatoosh and Goliath left Astoria early today for the scene but the captains had little hope that they would be able to get close enough to shore that lifelines might be fired over her.

A report from the life saving station at North Head says the Washington is drifting rapidly toward North head and was expected to go ashore soon. No smoke from her funnel could be seen and it was believed she was full of water.

In spite of the heavy sea life-savers prepared to launch their boat in the hope of picking up any who might be washed from the wreck or jump into the sea. Two of the crew of the Washington were washed overboard and drowned. The lifesaving crews have not got a line aboard the vessel.

NEW CARDINAL

GAVE HIS BLESSING TO THRON IN RAILROAD STATION

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 13.—At the Pennsylvania railroad station last evening more than 500 Catholics and Protestants knelt on the station platform and received the apostolic blessing from Cardinal Falconio, who was en route from Washington to New York, whence he will sail for Rome to receive the red hat. He stood on the platform of a Pullman car and bestowed the blessing during the brief stop of the train. He was cheered before and after the ceremony. Mr. Lyons, vicar general of this diocese, and Mr. Grant and Mr. Ryan of St. Peter's cathedral headed the throng. The sight-seers cheered a tribute that the prelate acknowledged by bowing.

ACCUSED WOMAN SELLS PROPERTY TO GET MONEY FOR HER DEFENSE

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Louise Vermilya, accused of the murder of Arthur Bismont, has ordered the sale of all her household goods and the bulk of her other personal property and surrendered the lease of her apartment at 415 East 29th street.

The accused woman told the attendants at the county jail hospital, where she is a patient, that the sale was necessary in order that she might raise money for her defense.

NEW BREED OF HENS

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Cal., Nov. 13.—Patricism to the ultimate degree is exemplified in a new breed of hens now flaunting the national colors at the poultry farm of Dr. Royce here. Bright red of head, pure white of body and indigo blue of tail, the fowls came out of the eggs a short time ago. There were several variegated birds and Dr. Royce asserts that the extraordinary plumage is the result of long experimental observation. He has named the new breed the "Patriot."

THE MAJESTICS DEFEATED MASS. CLOTH ROOM TEAM

The Majestics defeated the team representing the Massachusetts cloth room on the floor Saturday night by a score of 1246 to 1231. The scores were comparatively low, none of the bowlers being able to reach the century mark in a single string. Bradbury of the winning team was high man.

Two teams from the Tremont & Suffolk mills bowled Saturday night and the single men put it all over the married men. The scores:

BOXING GOSSIP

Great interest is being taken about town in the coming bout between Johnnie Gallant and Young Jasper, both of the Lowell Social and Athletic club next Friday evening. The pair put up one of the best bouts ever seen here at their last meeting in Mathew hall and have not met each other since. Both are clever boxers and as quick as lightning. There is great rivalry between the pair as neither has ever shown a decided advantage over the other.

The boxing fans won't be happy until they see Jimmie Moriarty matched against one of the top-notch welterweights as they firmly believe that he is a candidate for the championship. Jimmie has improved wonderfully in his boxing and still retains the wallop.

NEW BREED OF HENS

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Cal., Nov. 13.—Patricism to the ultimate degree is exemplified in a new breed of hens now flaunting the national colors at the poultry farm of Dr. Royce here. Bright red of head, pure white of body and indigo blue of tail, the fowls came out of the eggs a short time ago. There were several variegated birds and Dr. Royce asserts that the extraordinary plumage is the result of long experimental observation. He has named the new breed the "Patriot."

BOXING GOSSIP

Great interest is being taken about town in the coming bout between Johnnie Gallant and Young Jasper, both of the Lowell Social and Athletic club next Friday evening. The pair put up one of the best bouts ever seen here at their last meeting in Mathew hall and have not met each other since. Both are clever boxers and as quick as lightning. There is great rivalry between the pair as neither has ever shown a decided advantage over the other.

The boxing fans won't be happy until they see Jimmie Moriarty matched against one of the top-notch welterweights as they firmly believe that he is a candidate for the championship. Jimmie has improved wonderfully in his boxing and still retains the wallop.

MURDER AND SUICIDE SEVERAL CANDIDATES

Man Killed Friend and Took His Own Life

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Nov. 13.—At noon yesterday Nathan E. Butterfield, foreman at the government fish hatchery here, entered the barn at the hatchery and shot Henry C. Williams, culturist at the hatchery, and killed him instantly.

He then turned the revolver on himself and sent a shot through his own brain.

Jealousy is supposed to have been one of the causes of the double tragedy. It is supposed his mind was unbalanced by the recent death of his 20-year-old daughter and by financial difficulties he was known to be in.

There were no witnesses of the crime and no one heard the shooting. The bodies were discovered shortly afterward by Paul Carter, son of Rupt. Carter, in charge of the hatchery. Williams was in the barn, cleaning the stable, and Butterfield found him there. Young Carter went into the stable to get about some ponies and came upon their bodies. He notified Dr. E. H. Ross, who in turn notified Sheriff Worthen and State's Atty. Simonds, and the three went to the scene of the shooting. No autopsy was considered necessary and the bodies were removed to local undertaking rooms.

Jealous of Victim

Butterfield had been employed as foreman at the hatchery and apparently had taken a keen interest in the work of Williams, who worked under him. Butterfield had been employed at the hatchery for nearly five years, and Williams for two years.

Mr. Williams was increasing in efficiency and Butterfield apparently feared he might supplant him as foreman. Butterfield had brooded over this a great deal, it is said.

Williams was cleaning the stable at the time of the shooting and had a scuffle open to the basement. In falling he dropped the stable fork he was using and this prevented his body from falling through the scuffle.

Nathan E. Butterfield was 45 years old and lived in Milford, N. H., and formerly in Nashua. He came here four years ago last spring. His wife and a daughter live in Milford.

There is still a demand for stronger candidates for the new commission. The best in the city is none too good and while a number of strong, capable men have already declared themselves as candidates there is room for more. You have until next Saturday to take out your nomination papers. The following candidates took out their papers at the office of the city clerk today:

For Aldermen

Abner L. Kittredge, Myrtle street.
Cyrus Barton, 78 South Walker street.
Royal K. Dexter, 319 Wilder street.
James E. Riley, 45 Jewett street.
James Coughlin, 356 Parker street.
C. Oliver Barnes, 42 London street.
William J. Carroll, 18 Barclay street.

For School Board

Daniel J. Crane, 51 Common street.
Dr. Patrick J. Begley, 19 Lombard street.

The name of Franklin Johnson appeared Saturday, in the list of candidates for aldermen. It should have been in the school committee column.

Joseph F. Whitley wishes to announce that he has dropped out of the alderman contest. Mr. Whitley had taken out his nomination papers. "I wish to announce," he said, "that I am not a candidate for alderman and I wish to thank my friends who have been interested in my behalf."

James Riley announced that he is no longer a candidate for mayor.

LOYALISTS PREPARE FOR INVASION

LISBON, Nov. 13.—According to the newspapers the loyalists are again preparing for an invasion, which will be begun as soon as the weather clears. Just now the whole of North Portugal is being flooded with torrential rains.

Prince Miguel of Braganza, son of the pretender, has left Paris for London, where he has succeeded in raising another loan of $10,000,000 guaranteed by wealthy Portuguese royalists who are living abroad. A part of this is to be used for the purchase of 20 Maxim guns, 30 field guns, 2000 horses and mules and winter clothing for the troops and to pay another installment on the warships. Because of the failure of the previous royalist attempt the government is not taking the present movement very seriously. However, it has been decided, instead of reinforcing the troops on the frontier as had been planned, to withdraw the forces in the country to Lisbon. Should the royalists capture some of the border towns the government is confident that they could be retaken later.

TO DESTROY AEROPLANES

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 13.—Practical demonstration of the effectiveness in destroying aeroplanes of a new explosive shell even when the explosion occurs as far distant as 100 yards from the airship is reported to have been made in aerial target practice by the Pacific fleet off Coronado islands.

The success of the attempt is not announced by officers of the fleet, who, under the regulations, are silent, but is vouched for by a witness of the practice. This is the first aeroplane target practice in which the Pacific fleet has ever engaged and it is believed to be the first time the newly invented shell has been tried out by naval vessels.

block, 12 inches thick and plastered inside and out. The roof will be supported by steel trusses and the building will be as nearly fireproof as it is possible to make it.

There will be a large coal shed connected with the building and the coal will not be exposed to the weather as is the case at the present time. Provision will be made for traveling cranes for the moving of machinery. The plans call for lots of light and the house, as a whole, will be highly ornamental.

The engine room will be 64 feet long and about 54 feet deep. The boiler room will be about 36 by 43 and the coal shed 21 by 62.

SCHOONER LOST

Wife and Child of Captain Drowned

FISHERS ISLAND, N. Y., Nov. 13.—The schooner which sank in Plum Gut off Port Terry last night was the Edith Dennis, Captain Cook, of Greenport, N. Y. The captain was saved, floating to the Fort Terry shore on a piece of wreckage, but his wife and child and two men who made up the crew were drowned. Captain Cook was taken to the hospital at the fort completely exhausted. He left this morning for Plum Island light in the hope of finding the bodies of his wife and child.

The schooner, so far as information is obtainable here, was bound from Greenport to a Connecticut sound port. She was driven before the gale and sprung a leak when close in the Long Island shore in the Plum Gut. The vessel's condition was seen at Port Terry and the 60 inch searchlight was turned on to sweep the waters and five companies of coast artillerymen were used as watchers. All that could be seen of the vessel was her mast. Captain Cook put his wife and child into a boat with the mule but the boat overturned and all were lost.

WOMAN SUSPECTED Of Having Stolen Necklace Worth $15,000

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—A woman "Raffles" may have stolen the $15,000 diamond necklace of Mrs. Bryce J. Allan. This is declared to be the theory upon which the detectives who are searching for the magnificent gems have been working. The circumstances surrounding their disappearance are said to be consistent with the belief that the necklace was removed by someone emulating Horning's hero.

That it was the work of a woman is now conceded.

As was published yesterday, Mrs. Allan was attending a Back Bay dinner when the necklace was stolen. She had just taken it off and had laid it down while she added a touch of powder to her throat. In removing her wrap she laid the trinket on a dressing table. Only women were about. When she had used the powder and turned to replace the necklace it was gone. Her first effort was made to keep the fact quiet, but the news of the loss of the valuable gems was whispered about.

When this news came to the public, it was said that the Allan house in Beverly had been entered and the gems stolen by burglars. When, after a lapse of time, it further became known that they had been taken while she was attending a wedding in Boston.

At first the loss was ascribed to enemies of Mrs. Allan, but this theory was later supplemented by that of an amateur thief.

Although every effort has been made, positively no trace has as yet been found of the gems. Descriptions have been sent everywhere and in every quarter men have been on the watch for the necklace or its individual gems to turn up.

For this reason it is surmised that the diamonds have fallen into the hands of persons who are not pressed for immediate funds by their sale, or else they have been sent to some remote part of this country or Canada and leisurely distributed.

The Allans have a residence at 255 Beacon street, and their summer home is at Beverly, where they are now stopping.

Bryce J. Allan is a steamship manager. The diamond necklace which was stolen was a gift from Mr. Allan to his wife and was greatly admired among society folks.

THE FOREIGNERS

In Tripoli Are Not in Danger

MARSEILLES, France, Nov. 13.—Officers of the American cruiser Chester which arrived from Tripoli are of the opinion that the foreigners are in no danger at the scene of the Turkish-Italian war. Commander Decker will forward an official report on the situation at Tripoli to Washington. He had a conference today with Alphonse Gaullin, the American consul-general here, who went out to the cruiser. Officers of the Chester state that during their stay at Tripoli the Turkish batteries located east of the city were directing an ineffective fire against the Italian warships in the harbor. This continued up to the time that the Chester sailed at 6 o'clock last Tuesday night. The officers think that the Italians control the situation in the city of Tripoli and are advancing slowly into the interior. The cholera situation in the city is bad but apparently the epidemic is not serious among the Italian forces. The general impression of the Italian aviation service was that it was very effective in facilitating the advance movements of the Italians. From the Chester the aeroplanes could be seen maneuvering above the fort in the harbor and over the oasis, the trees of which concealed Arabs and Turks. The American consul at Tripoli, Mr. Wood, decided to remain at his post as he considered that he was in no danger.

MAN FATALLY SHOT He Was Mistaken For a Deer

ST. STEPHEN, N. B., Nov. 13.—The fatal shooting of a young man named Driscoll, who was hunting with two companions named Mastey at Canoe, 30 miles from here, was made known in a message received here today. The message stated that Driscoll's gun was found not to have been discharged and was thought one of his companions had shot him in mistake for a deer. A coroner is investigating.

PRESENTED PURSE OF GOLD

Mr. Leo Dupont was agreeably surprised Saturday evening, when a number of his friends gathered at the home of his parents, Mrs. Frederick Dupont, 15 Fox street, the occasion being the 13th anniversary of the young man's birth.

Mr. Edgar Lambert made the presentation speech and in the name of the large gathering presented the young man with a purse containing 25 gold dollars. The host afterward made a surprise response in a neat way, and this was followed by a very interesting musical and literary program, Miss Emilienne Paradis and Mr. M. Turgeon contributing a large part of the program.

Particulars of all sorts were enjoyed till late hours and at the close of the evening, a delightful lunch was served.

AVIATOR RODGERS INJURED

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 13.—"I'll do it again as soon as the boys get the aeroplane fixed up," said Aviator Rodgers early today. Rodgers was rendered unconscious and badly bruised yesterday in his fall of 125 feet in a field of ploughed ground at Compton, half way between this city and Long beach, where he was to circle over the Pacific, but will be confined to his bed not more than a week his physicians say. His machine will be brought here today and rebuilt.

THE HEALTH DEPT. Takes a hand in the Garbage Gatherers Strike

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—If the garbage gatherers' strike is not broken today the health department will step in to help. New York from the evil effects of some 40,000 cars of refuse that has accumulated, since the men who drive the street cleaning department's wagons quit work because they objected to night hours. Fear of the strikers and their friends has kept professional strike-breakers from accepting the high wages the city offers for substitutes and dread of the teamsters' union has prevented contractors from bidding to perform the work usually done by the city.

The health department intervened today when its men took over the general number of barrels of disinfectant to sprinkle on the piles of rotting garbage in the poorer and more thickly populated districts. If the health authorities assume full charge of the situation the strike leaders say that they will permit their teamsters to serve as garbage collectors provided they do not have to work at night.

The cold wave came to the city's assistance this morning. The freezing temperature which prevailed early in the day was as good a disinfectant as the city physicians could desire. The high winds, however, scattered the rubbish and practically all the good that came from the cold. For the second time in its history the city was under fire patrol today. In every district a fireman with a length of hose and a hydrant wrench paced the sidewalk watching for fires in the mounds of refuse.

Gov. Dix does not regard the strike as serious enough to require state interference. The governor, who was here last night to attend the dinner of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish charities, said:

"I understand the city authorities have the situation well in hand. If it should come before me officially in any way, however, I should advise a conference between the leaders of the union and the city officials."

WAS FATALLY INJURED

Woman Struck by Auto Driven by Lowell Man

Mrs. Ruth Kittredge, aged 74 years, a resident of Tewksbury, was struck and fatally injured by a big six-cylinder Premier touring car owned and operated by James H. Horsfall of this city about 8 o'clock Saturday night in Wilmington, not far from the Tewksbury line on the Woburn road.

Mrs. Kittredge was hurried to the home of Arthur C. Tingley in Tewksbury where she was attended by Dr. Dodge of Wilmington and Dr. H. M. Larabee of Tewksbury. It was found the woman was suffering from broken ribs on both sides, a terrible wound in the head and other injuries about the body.

Despite the efforts of the doctors to save the woman's life she died about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Albert Zepp, a nephew of Mrs. Kittredge, states that after the machine struck the woman he shouted to the men in the car to come back and assist him in caring for his aunt, but they paid no attention to him and speeded on.

The matter was reported to the Lowell and Woburn police and with the Massachusetts register number "5018" to work on a careful search was made for Mr. Horsfall. State Inspector Silas Smith and Chief of Police Swain of Wilmington were in this city yesterday looking for the owner of the machine bearing the number 8018, but they failed to locate their man. Last evening Mr. Horsfall learned that he was wanted by the police and went to the local police station, where he gave himself up. He was picked up, released and charged with manslaughter, rest and charged with $5000 bail to appear in the police court in Woburn this morning. Messrs. Owen Carney and Patrick Keyes furnished the bail and Rep. Edward Fisher was engaged as counsel.

Mrs. Kittredge was on her way to Montvale, Mass., to visit relatives when the accident occurred. She went by way of an automobile with her nephew, Albert Zepp. When on the Woburn road near the town of Wilmington something went wrong with the machine in which she was riding. Mr. Zepp got out of the car in order to ascertain the cause of the trouble and in order to remove the cushion in one of the seats asked his aunt to step out of the car.

Suddenly the glare of four headlights in the distance warned Mr. Zepp that there was an automobile approaching rapidly, but he was so busy feeling that there was plenty of room for the approaching machine to pass, and not thinking for a moment but that the driver of the other automobile could see the lights on his machine, he continued to look for the trouble.

Mrs. Kittredge was standing close to the machine and apparently paid no attention to the approaching machine, which struck her a terrific blow.

The other machine kept on going, but skidded off into a ditch some distance away after dragging Mrs. Kittredge several yards. Mrs. Zepp rushed to the assistance of his aunt and after carrying her to the rear of his machine in order that she might not be struck by any other machine, that might pass through the road, shouldered the occupants of the ditched car to assist him in caring for his aunt, but it was the last he saw of her. After Mr. Horsfall was placed under arrest, he said that the only other occupants of the car other than himself were two male friends of his.

Dr. Dodge of Wilmington was summoned and after making a hasty examination of Mrs. Kittredge's wounds ordered her taken to the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. C. Tingley of Tewksbury, and Dr. Larabee was summoned to assist Dr. Dodge. Medical treatment was in vain, however, as Mrs. Kittredge died about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Her injuries were numerous, her ribs being crushed, one of her lungs being crushed, and a terrible scalp wound and numerous bruises and cuts on the body.

Arthur G. Beharrell, manager of the city hall garage, received a telephone communication that there was an automobile ditched in Wilmington which ordered her towed to this city. Mr. Beharrell and one of his mechanics went to the scene and after removing the machine from the ditch drove it to Lowell under its own power.

slaughter, in having caused the death of Mrs. Ruth Kittredge. He entered a plea of not guilty and the case was continued till November 22d for a hearing.

HORSFALL IN $2000

WOBURN, Nov. 13.—A plea of not guilty of manslaughter was entered by James Horsfall, a Lowell automobilist who is charged with causing the death of Mrs. Ruth Kittredge at Wilmington on Saturday night, when he was brought before Judge Edward F. Johnston in the Woburn district court today. He was held in bonds of $2000 for a continuance hearing on November 22.

Mrs. Kittredge was struck by an automobile on Main street, Wilmington, on Saturday night and died as the result of her injuries yesterday. Last night Horsfall surrendered to the Lowell police.

VERY COLD IN TEXAS

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 13.—The "norther" which swept over Oklahoma and Texas Sunday afternoon and night is declared to have brought the coldest weather for this date in 20 years. NEW PUMPING STATION

Fine Building to be Built on the Boulevard

The new pumping station to be erected on the boulevard will become as well as useful and will be a great improvement over the old station that is standing there today. The style of the new house will be very modern and it will be sufficiently large and commodious to provide for extra work and extra cost about $22,000. The contract has been awarded to Mr. Patrick O'Hearn. The contractor has a gang of men busy on the foundation. They started work there a week ago today and the contract calls for the completion of the building by March 1. The building will be 31 feet in height and, fronting on the boulevard, will add greatly to the appearance of the boulevard and surrounding area. It will have a red tile roof and the walls will be of terra cotta.
